SIXTH DISTRICT SCHOOL NOTES

The various grades in our school are learning this week, the meaning of the three great events which are being celebrated this month all over our Nation: election, Armistice Day and Thanksgiving Day.

The upper grades will celebrate Armistice Day, Friday with reading, etc., including a talk by an American Legion member who will bring out machine guns and such war trophies from the Groves-Walker Post, explaining the meaning of these to the children.

A number of the children were absent Monday afternoon attending the funeral of their little friend, Leone Slingerland, who was killed last Friday morning on Grand River while on her way to a party.

Second and Third Grades

Mr. Schulkins, our school director, visited us Tuesday morning. Mr. Schulkins told us about the Indians and their homes he had seen in Northwestern Canada.

Our third grade has started to write a Pilgrim story. Each page will contain a picture, cut free hand, illustrating the story.

Robert Buchanan, a third grader recently moved to Redford.

Nevt Carroll, is the name of our new classmate, who started school Tuesday. Neva comes from St. Paul's Lutheran School, Farmington.

OPERATOR IS HEROINE

Miss Rose Michant, telephone operator, is credited by the citizens of Lafayette, Contra Costa County, Cal., with having saved the town from destruction. She stuck to her post at the switchboard until she fainted from the heat when fire broke out in the Lafayette Hotel across the street from the telephone office. The fire spread to three residences and several small buildings, but the telephone operator remained at her post, calling nearby towns for help.

If it weren't for women some men would never enjoy a sense of superiority, and other men would never suffer from a sense of inferiority.

TRUST YOURSELF

ANY person who expects to win an important position in the world must learn to trust himself. And to trust himself he must believe in himself.

It may be hard for you to rely on your own judgment when others tell you that your judgment is wrong. But if you believe that your judgment is right you should act upon it.

Any unusual proposal on your part, for instance, will meet with the unreasoning opposition of those about you. Many will oppose it merely because they did not think of it themselves or because they have not the nerve or energy to carry it out.

I remember once that when I was dissatisfied with the wages I was getting I decided to ask for a twenty-five dollar a week raise, counting on actual ly getting fifteen. Unless I got fifteen, I told my friends, I was going to look for another job.

Immediately I was beset by a storm of pessimistic advice. "The field was limited," they said, and I might be unable to get another job. Better stick to what I had and say nothing. Anyway, twenty-five dollars a week was an unheard-of demand. The boss would probably throw me out of the office. These croakers did not know the situation nearly as well as I did, of course. I knew my own abilities and I had a pretty good idea of what the boss thought of them. I also knew that I was fed up on being underpaid and that I would about as soon quit as not.

But did the fact that they were not qualified to give me good advice deter any of these calamity howlers? Not at all. Not one of them hesitated to give me the benefit of his ignorance and inexperience.

The affair turned out as such affairs usually do. My judgment proved better than theirs.

It may seem difficult to rely on your own ability and judgment when everybody around you opposes it. But confidence is born of experience.

When you have learned your trade thoroughly there is no reason in the world why you should be afraid to stand on your own feet.

Nobody can know as much about yourself as you do. And nobody else is as well qualified to make your decisions as you are.

Every successful man is self-reliant in his own calling. He does not depend on the advice of others.

You must trust yourself if you expect to succeed.
