RANDOM DOINGS of a Random World

James Dandy of Chehalis, Wis., celebrated his 100th birthday by making his first airplane ride and was disappointed because he thinks it wasn't as thrilling and dangerous as shooting Ontario river rapids in a birch canoe.

John Sainsbury of London, who built a $7,500,000 business from an original capital of $5, is dead at the age of 82.

Andre Ralpasse of Marseilles married his step-mother's sister and his son married the daughter of his father's bride.

Sentenced to imprisonment for begging, Mrs. Georgiana Hill, 64 of London received $2,100 in gifts while in jail.

Recognizing the spirit of the times James Galvey of Leeds

Eng., has changed his sign from "barber shop" to bobber shop."

Estranged from his family, Pietro Garnelli of Turin, Italy, willed his soul to the devil and his fortune to charity.

Mrs. Ann Cripps of Kingston, Eng., was convicted for putting arsenic in a poplar tree to cause its death.

The board of guardians at Tipton, Eng., granted the petition of a poorhouse inmate who asked the board to buy her a corset.

Four men employed by St. Mary's Church of Torquay, Eng., have rung its bell for 50 years or more.

When Henry Marlow of Chicago saw his stolen automobile passing he dragged the driver from the seat and recovered his property.

Two women were hurt in a Chicago street car panic when a boy dropped a box from which six white mice escaped.

Mr. and Mrs. John Elliott of Lincoln, Eng., were arrested for selling a case of bootleg whiskey in church.

Humane education is compulsory in Kentucky schools and many animal pets are used to demonstrate the effects of kindness upon dumb brutes. Which shows that Mary and her little lamb were merely ahead of their day and generation.

The WEEKLY NEWSPAPER and YOU

Q Never in the history of American Journalism, have the ten thousand weekly newspapers of America measured up to their individual and collective responsibilities as they do today; the result is that, in the smaller centers of population, "man's humanity toward man" is nearer to being a reality than in the larger centers of population where "you hardly know your next door neighbor."

Q To successfully publish a newspaper today requires not only intelligence, but no small amount of capital; in the recent progress of newspaper-making in America, many hundreds of weekly newspapers and small dailies have been forced to quit, due to the economic pressure of social and industrial balances. So the weekly newspaper that has survived now, more than ever, has been able to do so only because it measures up to the human element that its area of kindly, loving, and tolerant field of readers demands.

Unlike the average city daily, whose chief slogan seems to be: "More pocket-books mean more merchants," this newspaper, as one of the weeklies of America, renews its pledge to its community for the perpetuation of those qualities of clean, constructive Journalism that have long made the weekly newspaper a strong institution—an institution "of the home, for the home, by home-loving journalists."

Q As time continues, and the achievements of mankind are made manifest through a more difficult and complex living, the Weekly Newspapers of America will ever stand in Journalism as the kindly barrier between decency and indecency, cleanliness and scandal, liberty and license, in American life.

Q For, remember, we Journalists in the Weekly Field, unlike our often too ambitious daily brethren, still place the souls of our communities' men and women, boys and girls, above the jingle of the cash register in our respective newspaper offices.

Remember this, when you think of newspapers of America - especially the ones that enter your home, that become a part of your family circle
