THE EDIBLE BIRD'S NEST
 Demand Exceeds Supply and Commodity Sells as High as $25 a Pound.

Edible bird's nests are found in the islands off the coast of Japan and are the products of a species of birds belonging to the family of swifts. The nests consist almost entirely of the silvery secretion of these birds, whose salivary glands are much more developed than those of the ordinary swift. The season for the gathering of the nests begins in April and ends in September.

The female bird, occasionally assisted by the male, makes the nest. About three months are spent by the young in their first nest, which is taken by the next gatherer before eggs are laid in it; then the birds immediately begin to make another nest, which is finished in about ten days and which is also taken. Usually a third nest is made in about three months, in which the bird is allowed to rear its offspring, after which this nest is also gathered. Each family of birds thus furnishes a crop of the nests for one season. The nests are considered the best in quality.

Most of these edible nests are consumed by the Chinese, who regard them, not only as a great delicacy, but also as a valuable tonic medicine in neurasthenia and pulmonary disorders. It is said that the demand in Hongkong for the nests exceeds the supply, and that prices range from $15 to $25 per pound, according to quality.

TRIALS OF THE BANK CLERK
 Through Them All He Sticks to Post, Preserves Self Respect and Respect of Others.

One occasionally hears of a defalcation on the part of a clerk in a bank, not only as a great financial institution, but considering the proportion that fall of absolute honesty is small indeed. The young man who is always neat, always courteous, always at his desk to enter your credits or point out your errors seldom forgets that he is dealing with the property of other people; yet as bad influences, as bad environments, as bad examples are brought to bear upon him from any source frequently emanate right in banking circles, possibly within the very institution which he serves faithfully for a very small salary.

Carelessness in administration is perhaps before him every day; handling of securities and money by the heads of institutions in ways that would be thought improper; not to say dishonest; if employed by the bookkeeper or check clerk is often done with his knowledge and with the knowledge of his fellow clerks; yet he sticks to his post and seldom fails to preserve his self respect and the respect of others. F. P. Ferris in Leading's.

To Stop Cough in Church.
 Every man has experienced the mortification of one of those expiring, hacking little coughs which tickle the throat and seem to grow worse the more one tries to overcome them.

They always come upon one just at a time when the kindly cough drop has been left at home and it is impossible to procure the saving sip of water.

Many a woman has had red face and the echo of a hacking little cough following her down the aisle and into the vestibule, when the trouble might have been conquered in a very simple way.

A cough drop is not at all essential to the stopping of a tickling cough. A pinch of powder, torn from the corner of a hymn book leaf or an available pamphlet or paper, will answer quite as well as the bit of horehound or licorice, for the action of the throat muscles in masticating the bit of paper is the same as that of swallowing some essence the cough, and by the time the paper is reduced to a pulp the cough will have eased, and one's nervousness will be entirely gone.

The Table Groaned.
 "There are several names for it," explained the talkative boarder. "It may be New York, when you concur in the amputated condurum or the half point condurum. It is a condurum that has had its exsucting clause stricken out. Here's a sample: The one in a Berlin that's whisky and the other is a Willis that's barkin'."

"But what is the question that goes with it?" asked the argumentative boarder.
 "There isn't any question that goes with it. It has been deprived of its interrogation point. That is why it may be called a half point condurum."
 Nobody said anything in rejoinder. But the table groaned.
 Do You Know Him?
 The musician had delighted her audience for an hour with classic melody, and at one one's suggestion she was now rendering one of her own compositions.
 As they close his whistled suddenly about on the stool amidst plaudits and general expressions of admiration. Her own little piece had struck chords among the audience.
 "Ah," said the listener who had heard the selection for the first time, "that is very beautiful—charming—melodious—it sounds just like something I've heard before."

HORSES THAT FEED ON FISH.

Along the shores of Albemarle Sound, South Carolina, the shores of our sandy banks, the greater part is covered with little y-guttling sars, coarse grass, wild parsley, and other salt-water weeds. To this region come those who shoot the canvas-back duck and frequent the little streams and bays, feeding upon the wild parsley and marsh grass. On some of these banks are a breed of small wild horses, known in the neighborhood as "banker ponies." They are quite fawned and unclean, for have rough shaggy coats, and are generally about twice the size of a Shetland pony, now and again one resulting the size of a small horse.

Each year the herd-owners drive them into pens, where the foals are branded with his owner's mark, and those required are caught and sold to the dealers. It is said that these ponies never will be started into eating grass or hay or grass, their whole subsistence up to this time having been the rank salt grass of the marshes, and fish. The latter they catch for themselves at low tide, using their heads to dig deep holes in the sand below high-water mark, and they greedily devour the fish so left stranded, often fighting over an especially tempting one.

In captivity they are said to display intelligence, though seldom a reliable temper. They are tamed by darkness and semi-starvation, and make excellent draught animals, showing strength far beyond their size. They eat voraciously, consuming 30, such as full-sized horses.

The foals bred from "banker ponies" in captivity make valuable animals. They are strong, heavy and intelligent, less vicious than their parents, and command good prices.

DRINK PLENTY OF WATER
 It Flushes the System, Carrying Out Impurities and Leaving What is Beneficial.

To say that drinking at least three pints of water a day would make a great beautiful would be gross exaggeration, but it is perfectly true that such an amount of fluid, taken judiciously every day, will be a wonderful aid in acquiring or increasing good looks, and it is such a cheap way of improving one's appearance that to ignore it is a pity.

Water, properly taken, flushes the system as a pipe is cleaned by putting down it a large quantity of pure clean water. Impurities are carried out, leaving only that which is beneficial.

In order that the good effect shall be gained, two facts are important. One is that the fluid shall not be taken with meals, and the other that it shall not be of icy temperatures. In the former case it dilutes the gastric juices, sometimes causing indigestion, and certainly neutralizing some of the nourishing properties of food; in the latter it stays digestion, and may be the cause of severe pain.

Many dietitians now agree that water should not be taken with meals, and that many cases of indigestion may be traced directly to the fact that this theory is unheeded. To derive benefit a glassful should be taken at a time, sipping it slowly and not gulping large quantities. Ten minutes for each glass is none too long. The temperature may be cool, but not sufficiently so to chill the stomach.

The first drink is to be taken soon after the last hour of the meal and water is not to be put into the stomach later than half an hour before a meal.

Lacked Length of Legs.
 A large pompous person, wearing a high-top, long coat, yellow spats and a colonial snoot, for several days made himself obnoxious around a Washington hotel a bit ago.

He announced he was from New York, nagged the bellboys, jawed the clerks, caused the service, roared at the food, complained about his room and the elevator and the telephone and the bar, and everything else.

One afternoon he walked over to the porter and said: "Here you, I'm going to quit this town and go back to New York, when you concur in the amputated condurum or the half point condurum. It is a condurum that has had its exsucting clause stricken out. Here's a sample: The one in a Berlin that's whisky and the other is a Willis that's barkin'."

"The seats were delivered at the train just before it pulled out. One of the seats was in car No. 3 and the other was located in car No. 4—Cleveland Leader.

Can't Wear Brown Shoes.
 "Do you know that certain individuals cannot possibly wear brown shoes?" inquired the veteran shoe clerk.
 "I have been in the business more than twenty years, and I can name several regular customers who every season make a frantic but futile effort to wear brown shoes in precisely the same bold, made over the same last and in the same quality of leather as the black ones they are wearing, and yet within a month the customers come back saying they had given up on the brown shoe."
 It seems as if some feet will never adjust to endure the touch of the brown leather."
