

Bronze reality: The artwork soon to adorn Farmington's City Hall is coming along, but funds are still needed. /3A

'Joshua' author: A retired Catholic priest who has written several books will speak at Mercy High School next month. /3A

MALLS & MAINSTREETS

Looking good: Estee Lauder's "More Than A Make-over" pro-gram pays a visit to Twelve Oaks Mall and serves up some stylish tips. /8A

OPINION

Short end: Columnist John Telford recalls how education has continually been on the short end of the stick. /10A

COUNTY NEWS

Realtors angle: The governor's school finance plan is likely to hurt housing sales. /12A

TASTE

Homemade sausage: Dr. Howard Hamerick and his Aunt Josephine Molenda are smoking this fall, sausage that is. / 1B

Dairy-brewed beer: Brewmaster Tom Burns turns out 60 kegs of dairy-brewed beer a week. /1B

SPORTS

Cross country: The North Farmington girls and Farmington boys are one victory away from winning Lakes Division titles. /1C

CABLE TV WEEKLY

Local access: "Night Life" on lo-cal access Channel 12. Check your cable guide for time and date.

INDEX

Obliuarles 2A
On the agenda . 11A
Personal Scene 71
Police, fire calls . 2A
Sports 10
Street Scene 51
Tasto 11

HERE'S HOW TO REACH US

Newsroom: 477–5450 Newsroom Fax: 477–9722 Sports: 953–2141 Reader Comment Line: 953–2141 Classified Advertising: 551–2900 Display Advertising: 591–2300 Home Delivery: 591–0500 Cable/TV Weekly: 953-2199

Merchants add 2 cents on plan

Thanks to the state, Farmington's Downtown Development Authority finds itself short of cash. A special assessment on commercial property would be one way to refill the coffers. Here's how some business people

By Larry O'Connor Staff Writer

Some downtown Farmington business owners express mixed feelings about a proposed special assessment. Details of the assessment to helpfund the Farmington Downtown Development Authority have not been worked out. The DDA is expected to discuss the issue at a special meeting 8 a.m. Tuesdoy. While some question it, others such as Civic Theatre owner Greg Hohler support the special assess-ment being considered. "When you see what's been done in the last seven years, if we do not maintain funding for the programs . . . the town will fall into the conditions it was in from the post," Hohler said.

Small price to pay

Books Abound and Books for Less owner Skip Rosenthal thinks the as-sessment is a small price to pay. "As far as the taxing goes, we have no objection at all," said Rosenthal, whose two book outlets are in the Central Business District. "They have reduced the property tax overall.

The big taxes (property tax for schools) have gone down to nothing. The DDA needs to raise some money. It's avery small. It's no big deal."
But, added Rosenthal's next door neighbor John Cowley, owner of Cowley's Village Inn: "I don't know what the hell it is, but I can't alford it."
DDA officials say a special assessment is needed, though.
The DDA will loss $130,000 in tax increment linancing revenue for the 1994-95 budget. That's 54 percent cut from its $240,000 projected budget.

See MERCHANTS, 4A

Home schoolers on a field trip

Science projecti. Lita Hoyer and her children (from left Amy, Bob and Michael study a water bug from the branch of the Rouge River that runs they

Down to the river: Amy Hoyer plays with rive water during the project.

Parents home in on children's schooling

BY LARRY O'CONNOR STAFF WRITER

The bell never rings in Bob and Amy Hoyer's school.

And the principal's office, cafeteria and lavatory are well within a few feet of each other. So is their two-year-old brother, Michael, who sits at a tot's desk drawing pictures while they learn about science.

The Hoyer children are getting their education home delivered. The teacher is their parents.

While schools of choice and academies are buzz phrases in education circles, the Farmington Hills family is trying the oldest alternative of all—home schooling.

"You know how you'll make, "We'll nover' statements?" all that Hoyer, "We said we'd never home school, It was too much." When private schools didn't seem to be making the grade, though, Lita and her husband Mark Hoyer decided to give it a try.

Parents had concerns
She teaches reading, history, spelling and language. Her husband, who works during the day as asles manager for a medical supply company, handles the children

See HOME, 6A

Clinton proposal debated

By BILL COUTANT

During opening remarks at Botsford General Hospital's vening, Chaplain Kurt Stutz said he HEALING OUR had heard leadership forum dinner Thursday wening, Chaplain Kurt Stutz said he HEALING OUR had heard leadership described in two following you, or Gerson Cooper, president and chief executive officer of Botsford, and guest speaker Eleanor Clift, a commentator on the syndicated television talk show "The McLaughlin Group," agreed that members of Congress will have to come up with some kind of health-care plan before they run again or they may well be chased out of office.

"Heapital administratora, doctors, government officials and business people attended the program at the Novi Hilton, which featured a debate between Clift and fellow McLaughlin Group member Fred Barnes on the Clinton health-care proposal.

Barnes, senior editor of The New Republic magazine, and Clift, congressional and political correspondent with Newsweek, disagreed civilly over health care.

The "sages of the beltway," as Sieve Barnaby, group manager for the Eccentric Newspapers introduced them, talked about the health-care proposal and its political chances before fielding questions.

Shared insights, humor
But they first took time to share

Bhared insights, humor
But they first took time to share their insights and humor on the Congress, the Clinton presidency and John McLaughlin, the former priest who hoast the TV show.

"There was 'n time when Al Gore though' it was going to be a co-presidency," Barnes said. "Now he's a heartbeat away from the vice presidency," he said, referring to First Lady Hillary Clinton's perceived

Lorelli sees ways to trim spending

Vincent Lorelli is one of six candidates, including two challengers, running for the Farmington Hills City Council. Election day is Tuesday, Nov. 2.

By BILL COUTANT STAFF WRITER

Farmington Hills is wasting a lot of money by not relying on more privatization of services and it's costing taxpayers, says council candidate Vincent Lorelli.

"I think the taxes are high for the services we're getting," said Lorelli, 26. The attorney, who has a sole prac-tice in Farmington Hills, said the slow response to snow removal and other department of public works functions made him take a hard look at the city's policies and conclude that there must be a change.

"You've got $3,000 being spent on a radar trailer that tells people how fast they're going," he said. "That's what your speedometer's for. You have $40,000 being spent on sidewalks and bike paths (on Farmington Road) that nobody wants."

Lorelli criticized the tendency to

See LORELLI, SA

Candidates coming

A ttention Farmington Hills voters: The candidates in the upcoming city council election will air their views at a candidate forum at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 19, in the Hills City Hall, 11 Mile and Orchard Lake roads.

The forum is the seventh-annual Council of Homeowner Associations' Town Crier Candidate

The six candidates — incumbents Jon Grant, Aldo Vagnozzi, Lerry Lichtman and Ben Marks, and challengers Cheryl Oliverio and Vincent Lorelli — are expected to attend.

Panellats will be Farmington Observer editor Tom Baer and COHA past presidents Gail Haynes and Marty Kroner. Moderator will be Jack Raikovich.

FARMINGTON FOCUS

The event will be cablecast live on MetroVision's Channel B. A viewer call-in telephone number will be shown on the TV screen.

Rep. Dolan to speak

State Rep. Jan Dolon, R-Farmington Hills, will discuss politics and local issues at a Chamber of Commerce Junchen at noon Friday, Oct. 22, at the On The Tee Restaurant in San Marino Golf Course, 26634 Halsted Road. The public is invited.

Cost is $13 for chamber members and $20 for non-members. For reservations or for more infor-mation, call the chamber at 474-3440.

Neighborly folks needed

Reighborhood House of Farmington/Farmington Hills is putting out the word: The organization needs some helping hands. Neighborhood House, at 20415 Shiawassee, Farmington Hills, helps needy families in the area. Anyone who would like to volunteer should call 474-7580.

Items for Farmington Focus may be mailed to the Farmington Observer, 21898 Farmington Road, Farmington 48336; dropped off at the newspaper office; or faxed to 477-9722.