Flu from page 1A

Farmington. "It kind of puts a strain on the other girls working. Everyone has to work harder."

Hermanoff & Associates, a public relations firm in Farmington Hills, have had six of 14 employees sick.

Said a Hermanoff spokeswoman: "We're looking seriously at pitching an antibiotic company."

Patient traffic in Botsford Hospital's emergency room has looked like an airport terminal.

Dr. Ron Lagerfeld, director of Emergency Medicine at Botsford, said hospital resources have been stretched to the maximum. People with the flu are coming in along with the regular emergency room cases, keeping staff quite busy.

On Friday afternoon, Lagerfeld estimated they had already treated 15-20 people with the flu.

"I think for some reason, people are having a hard time shaking it," Lagerfeld said. "It's not three or four days. It lingers for a week to 10 days. The people who end up coming here have tried to take care of it at home."

Some cases have included people with a temperature of 104 degrees and dehydration. One flu sufferer also had encephalitis, which is an inflammation of the brain.

They try to get the fever down with Tylenol or Motrin and treat dehydration with the use of an IV, Lagerfeld said.

"Our experience is this is hitting young people more so than older people," Lagerfeld said. "Many of the elderly have gotten their flu shots and maybe are immune to it."

LWV offers state government info

Looking for information about state government? The League of Women Voters has a toll-free telephone service (1-800-292-5823) that may be helpful.

The league's Citizen Information Center in Lansing offers to help people find out about such things as pending legislation, the state constitution, election laws, voting regulations or tax information.

The telephone is answered from 10:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. weekdays.
