

Kids sport smiles to help promote good dental health

Mike George, hair slicked back and sporting a toothy grin, said he likes his dentist. Uh, he just couldn't remember his dentist's name when approached by a reporter at Tuesday night's Children's Dental Health Month

Poster Contest Awards Banquet at The Community House in Birmingham.

The fourth grade student at University Hills School in Rochester experienced the same problem as other students at the seventh annual program. But never mind, Mike noted that he does go to the dentist every six months. Joining him, and 88 other students, were second place winner Nicole Walby and Molly Faudie, both also from University Hills, which seemed to have a large contingent at the banquet. Molley brought along someone special — her mother and the school's art teacher, Sallie Faudie, who initiated the program.

"It (the contest) was part of a dental health unit and gave us a chance to teach good habits," she said.

Justin Sundberg, a third grade student at Orchard Hills Elementary School in Novi, drew a toothy "Wolverine Man" and Amar Saraiya, also a third grader, took a heavy approach to the subject and drew a tooth holding weights.

Seven years ago, the Oakland County Dental Society started out with 30 students in the basement of the Birmingham YMCA, according to Dr. Leslie Metzger. This year there were 470 entrants and 50 winners.

Students at the banquet, their parents and dentists got an evening of entertainment, with Detroit's Rocker Ian Fairbrother signing autographs and magician Jim Fitzsimmons performing.

"This is a tremendous way to reach people," said Dr. Metzger. "There are no negative in dentistry anymore."
