

Author focuses on spirit and psychotherapy

Judith Goren, a licensed clinical psychologist in Farmington Hills, is the author of a volume of poetry, "Traveling Toward the Heart," published in April by Ridgeway Press.

The four sections of the book, traveling, detours, healing and reaching the heart, include poems about relationships, death, psychotherapy and spiritual awareness.

Goren's poetry has been published in literary journals and anologies. This is her second collection of poetry.

On May 19, Goren will present an evening poetry reading and lecture, "The Heart of the Poem," at the Farmington Hills Community Center. Registration is required.

"Traveling Toward the Heart" can be ordered at some local bookstores or directly from the publisher: Ridgeway Press, P.O. Box 120, Roseville, Mich. 48066. The cost is $11.25, which includes tax, postage and handling.

Filling empty bowls: About 500 people put on their sneakers Sunday, May 1, and hit the streets to raise money for the Farmington Area Crop Walk, sponsored by Church World Services. They raised $25,000, which was about the amount raised last year and was slightly less than hoped for. Anyone interested in donating to the cause should make checks payable to CWS CROP and send them within the next two weeks to the Farmington Salvation Army, 27500 Shiwasssee, Farmington Hills 48336.

Volunteers helped abused and neglected children

The St. Vincent & Sarah Fisher Center saluted Edward and Juliette Jonnas as the Center's "Volunteers of the Year" for their outstanding dedication and commitment to improving the lives of abused and neglected children.

The couple received an outstanding volunteer award at the National Society of Fund Raising Executives' (NSFRE) annual recognition luncheon recently.

The Jonnas, owners of the metro Detroit-based Merchant of Vino gourmet food stores, began a small wine tasting event in 1988 to raise money for the center's children.

Seven years later, this event, known as the Garden Party, La Fete Au Jardin, generated more than $100,000 annually and has been a sell-out for the last two years.

Serving as event chairs, each year the Jonnas bring their business expertise, enthusiasm, creativity and love for the center to create one of the Detroit area's premier events.

"In addition to funds raised by the Garden Party, the Jonnas and their family serve as one of the center's best goodwill ambassadors," said Jean Vickers, executive director.

"By spreading the word of the Center to the community, they have encouraged countless others to become volunteers or donate significant gifts," Vickers said.

The Jonnas' history began with the St. Vincent & Sarah Fisher Center when they opened their Merchant of Vino store on Northwestern Highway in Farmington Hills, around the corner from the Center (12 Mile and Inkster).

The couple became emotionally involved with the center's kids after hiring a few older children to help put together gift baskets during the holidays.

After getting to know the children the Jonnas decided they wanted to do more to help.

"We could not think of a more deserving couple to receive this recognition," Vickers said. "On behalf of all the children and families we help, we thank them for their enormous hearts and outstanding contribution."
