

Young helper: There was plenty of work for everyone, including 7-year-old Catlin Leads of Farmington Hills, at Rouge Rescue '94.

Martin, ("I'm kind of excited. I want to be in the river."), Scott O'Connor, Dave Quinn, Rob Loreto and James Hakim, all of Livonia.

Hakim said extra credit in physics class is the carrot that drew him to the worthy effort. "It's a little early on Saturday morning if I'm not getting something else for it," he said.

Charlie Cathcart of Westland said he's attended four consecutive Rouge Rescues as a member of the Holiday Park Nature Preserve Association. "I just come out to get my hand in it," he said. "The Rouge is something we've got here that we've got to keep, got to clean up."

In Livonia the volunteers congregated at Levan Knoll along Hines Drive for the annual ritual. "It's a good project, definitely necessary," said Plymouth resident Steve Labster, the grandson of former Plymouth/Canton

■ 'This is a perfect example of how a community pulls together for the common good. It's just a very responsive community. I hope we're making a dent.'

schools superintendent Russell Labster. "It's too bad (the cleanup) is just once a year."

Labster was part of a group of eight organized by state Sen. Bob Geake, R-Northville, who works at a different site each year within his district. Said Stacey Murphy, who answers phones in Geake's Lansing office, "I don't like getting dirty too much, but it's fun and it's serving a purpose."

Logging off: Sam Lowe, who works part time for the Farmington Hills Parks and Recreation Department, gives the old heave-ho to a log in the Rouge.

Men, if you're about to turn 18, it's time to register with Selective Service at any U.S. Post Office.

It's quick. It's easy. And it's the law.
