Plant artistic delights in garden

How does your garden grow! With such artistic flair as sculp-ure and chair, and unusual pieces

That's if you visit "A Garden of Artful Delights," an exhibit of art for the outdoors, continuing to June 15 at the Ariana Gallery, 119 S. Main in Royal Oak (cail (810) 848-8810)

The display presents a variety of garden art, from whirliging to furniture. The gallery has desig-nated a permanent area to show

Two of the featured artists are Robert Hansen and Nana Schowalter. Hansen uses both extabilished and innovative blacksmithing techniques to produce sophisticated metal sculpture. Among his pieces are furnitive and such decorative works as the sculpture that presents a variety of different shapes within an enclosed area, like a microcosm.

■ PERSPECTIVES

atakes, with their faux verdigris finish, have a playful air. They in-clude suns and abstract arrange-ments.

The whimsical and the stylish can be found in the pieces by other artists. Such items as tubing, grates, tractor seats and wheel rims are arranged to form large, cheery insects and animals, painted in festive purples, greens and yellows. The insect bodies may curve up to hold a flat surface for a table, or a seat and back for a chair.

A hummingbird and lily form an elegant circle, both on a stake and as a hanging feeder. Steel mesh and grating are among the components of a tall, freestanding work that resembles an underwa-ter scene.

rust or patina are images of a rec-ster, sun and bumblebes. Tail wooden posts have carved faces at the top.
Profiles of forms dancing or playing musical instruments adorn stakes. A weathervane fea-tures a brightly dressed, layfully irreverent figure. Insects and rep-tiles of thin metal have feative hues.

Rochester revisited

The sites are familiar in "Scenes of Rochester," the Pontiac Oakland Society of Artists show continuing to June 12 at Great Oaks Mail, Walton and Livernois in Rochester.
