CHAPTER VI.

A Mighty Poor Joke.

Of course, one knows that there are people who in a different grade of society would be shoplifters and pick-pockets. When they are restrained by obligation or environment they become a little overkeen at hidge, or take the wrong sables, or stuff a gold-backed brush into a must at a reception. You remember the twory dressing set that Theodora Buckendi had, fastened with fine gold chains? And the sensation it cames You Zire went enter the sensation it cames You Zire went enter the control of the carriage with two freet of gold chain hanging from the front of her wrap?

It was almost three when the house settled down—nobody had any night-loibes, atthough flashly, through Dallas, who gave them to Anne, who gave them to the rost, we got some things of Jimmi's—and I was still dressed. The house was perfectly died, and fafter listening catefully. I went slow if you was presently and the house was perfectly and the house was perfectly and the house had been and after listening catefully. I went slow in the house and after listening catefully. I went slow in the house and after listening catefully. The waters of the great lakes, except Lake Mehigan, will hereafter be full of don'ts. The international agreement relating to fishing in all international waters between Canada and the United States appears about to be ratified. Senator Smith, of Michigan, having anagged many of the regulations for commercial fishing out from unset to the commercial fishing out from understanding the commercial fishing out for memorate with the ratification of the remannt. Secutor Smith was the last man in the senate to object, so it looks like clear sailing. The don'ts which some fishermen will have to obey on the great lakes are interesting as well as numerous. As for other fishermen are senated in the canadian parliament are to pass acte making these remaining regulations the identical law on each side of the international boundary. It will be apparent that there is nothing to it but for the fishermen to obey.

Real Courage.

150 was the small son of a minister only his mother was teaching hir the mining of courage.

"Suppositing," she said, "there were tradied boys in one bedroom, and eleven got into bed at once, while the other knelt down to say his prayers, that boy would show true courage."

Oh," said the young hopeful, "I know something that would be more of arrageous than that? Supposing-there were twelve ministers in one bedroom, eld-one got into bed without saying hij prayers!"
