CREATIVE LIVING

PERSPECTIVES

Cranbrook exhibit offers views of state

offers views of state

offers views of state

dademy of Art 1959-60, came to the Academy of Art 1959-60, came to the United States from his native Hungary in 1921. He came to New York and then to Detroit, where he painted architectural renderings and perspectives for architect Albert Kahn.

Architecture is important in "Sepeshy" an exhibit continuing through Oct. 30 at the Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum, 1221 N.

Woodward in Bloomfield Hills (call (810) 8453312). The display includes rarely shown Detroit cityscapes on loan from Sanders/Country Home Bakery of Michigan.

Like steel girders running through even the most esthetic skyscraper, realism runs through Sopeshy's art. He infuses his industrial and city scenes with grit as well as grace. A balance of forms and angles creates movement in them.

These are postcards that capture life as well as looks. Featured are downtown shop windows and bustling passersby. The back of a motor plant. Buildings seen from the Lodge Freeway.

Cadillac Square.

Cranes and seagulls are included in harbor settings. Boats pass under the majestic Ambasandor Bridge. The deck is the focus in "Ship"
That Pass. "Chrysler Plant (Change of Shift)" shows neon letters against the dark, and a softly lit streeters. Soaring structures, and clouds and traffic that seem to be moving as counterparts, are presented in "City Canyon." "Center of Culture" shows a skyline with the main library and art museum.

The exhibit offers landscapes as well. Among these are snowcovered grounds and Belle Isle.

Speshy was born in 1898. He taught painting at the art school of the Detroit Society of Arts and Crafts, and was one of the initial facul ty members in the painting department et Cranbrook when he joined the staff in 1931. Sepeshy became director of the art academy in 1946. As a painter he was known for his mastery of technical skills and won many awards. He retired in 1966 and died in Royal Oak in 1974.

Shining talent

Another kind of craftsmanahip is displayed

Shining talent

Shining talent
Another kind of craftsmanship is displayed through July 10 at the Duke Gallery, 312 W.
Fourth in Royal Oak (call (610) 547-5511).
The gallery now represents Spratling silver, reissues of original designs by William Spratling (1900-1967). Spratling, proclaimed by the Mexitang overnment to be "the founding father of the Taxos school of silver," was a major force in the modern Mexican silver movement. Taxos is a modern Mexican silver movement. Taxos is a sure of the state of the s

See PERSPECTIVES, 8D

'City Canyon': Zoltan Sepeshy, who was the second president of the Cranbrook Academy of Art, painted this Griswold scene in oil and gouache almost 50 years ago. It is one of the artist's works exhibited at the Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum in Bloomfield Hills.

LOOKING AHEAD

atch for in Creative Living next week:

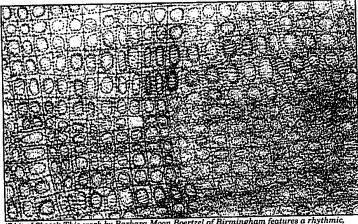

M Marty Figley's Garden Spot colu Exhibitions, art gallery event listings. in show ■ Textiles by Birmingham artist Barbara Moon Boertzel are among the works fea-tured in the current mixed media exhibit at the Sybaris Gallery in Royal Oak.

Mix of media

By MARY KLEMIC

Edge of Choos': This work by Barbara Moon Boertzel of Birmingham features a rhythmic, meditative pattern with its stitched circles of varying widths and darkness. It is included in the current exhibit at the Sybaris Gallery in Royal Oak.

Toxtiles and sure and metal sculpture have special strengths of their own in the current exhibit at the Sybaris Gallery, 202

E. Third in Royal Oak.

The mixed medit display of textiles by Barbara Moon Boertzel of Birmingham and complete or make tiny patterns that are arranged in segments and are slightly altered. The result is a rhythmic, black featured are cramic teapots by Harris Deller, Cindy Kolodziejski and Liz Quackembush.

Boertzel's work sugests that it is in progress, part of something the riewer could complete or watch develop in his or her mind. She communicates through patterns that in the size of the stitching markings and material this it can stained or dyed. Many of the markings are circular and are disthing the markings are circular send are distincted in squares, resembling a many others are semaller and provided with the designs on parts of them, like primitive patterns.

"Lines of the Hand" consists of strips of tea-stained cotton organdy, handmado Japanese paper and dyed cotton thread. The strips consists of them, the primitive patterns.

"Lines of the Hand" consists of strips of tea-stained cotton organdy, handmado Japanese paper and dyed cotton thread. The strips consists of them, the primitive patterns.

"Lines of the Hand" consists of strips of tea-stained cotton organdy, handmado Japanese paper and dyed cotton thread. The strips consists of them, the primitive patterns.

"Lines of the Hand" consists of strips of tea-stained cotton organdy, handmado Japanese paper and dyed cotton thread. The strips consists of them, the primitive patterns.

"Lines of the Hand" consists of strips of tea-stained cotton organdy, handmado Japanese paper and dyed cotton thread. The strips consists of them, the primitive patterns.

"Lines of the Hand" consists of strips of the statement of the control thread the control thread the contr creatures. They are made of copper, or copper and rubber, and are designed to be shaken. "Coral Urchins" consists of thin segments in a circle. Obrecht received a master of fine arts degree from Arizona State University in 1993.

resily in 1998. have a lot browing with their designs. Tenpots by Deller, who graduated from the Cranbrook Academy of Art, consist of white porcelain with seratches and lines over the surface. They look almost flat. Spouts are "aggressive" (eticking straight out, almost defiantly) or "passive" (curving like a laxy S). Kolodriejski makes elegant teapots out of objects found in a junk

See EXHIBIT, 10D

Daylilies to have their day in event

BY MARTY FIGLEY STAFF WRITER

By MARTY FIGLEY
BYATY WHITE
Mr. Daylily, also known as Harris Olson of Birmingham, has spent many years growing these flowers.
I spent a delightful afternoon with Olson in the gardens of the Congregational Church of Birmingham, 1000 Cranbrook in Bloomfield Hills,
the site of the annual Daylily show,
Saturday, July 16.
Admission is free. Judging begins at 10 a.m. and takes several hours.
"Don't come before I p.m. - except by that time all the daylilies for sale will be picked over," Olson said.
Many varieties of daylilies grow in the gardens and with the recent warm weather will be at the peak of bloom.
You will probably see several of Olson's hybrids, among them his
"Ruth Olson," recognizable out of 32,000 daylilies, with its ruffled and "sort of brown color." In 1985, during a national convention, he said he "gave away 50 on the buses; there are lots of blooms in a clump."

Membership
In order to host an official daylity show, a certain number of local members must be national members, so it's nacessary to become a national member the first year you join. After that, national membership is optional.
Dues for the first year are $16, and after that, $8 to continue the membership. New members join the American Hemerocallis Society as well as the Southern Michigan Hemerocallis Society. Olson said they have found that many members want to continue their national membership because they get four rice journals a year about growing daylilies. For additional information, call Jourgen Kasprick at (313) 624-2092.

Flowers alone are judged at the show. Four flowers on one scape (stem) must be blooming at the same time.

Flowers alone are judged at the show. Four flowers on one scape (stam) must be blooming at the same time. There are two main categories. The name variety of class is on all the different colors, sizes and shapes. The other judging is for unnamed varieties. Members of the SMHS come from as far away as Bay City for the show. Other members live in Livenias, Redford, Farmington, Troy, Birmingham, Rochester, Rochester Hills and Bloomfield Hills.

High on hybridizing
Olson and member Rich Surmont of Detroit agree that the reason hyridizing dayllities is so exciting is that you don't know what is going to happen each day.

"When you have 5,000 new seedlings, there's sure to be something opening every day that's different and interesting," Olson said.

"It's really easy to do, and it's a lot

See DAYLLES, 10D

Getting ready. Betty Sterley of Beverly Hills and Harris Olson of Birmingham get ready for the annual Daylily Show at the Congregational Church of Birmingham in Bloomfield Hills.

Arthest testures various happenings in the sub-urban arts world. Send news leads to: Creative Living, Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham 48009, or fax them by calling (810) 644-1314.

E WATERCOLOR WONDERS

A watercolor/pastel exhibit by award-winning Birmingham srite Fran Nicolson continues to July 17 in the main gallery of the Shiawassee Arts Center in Owoseo (call (517) 723-8354). Nicolson's colorful garden flower sories entrances with extraordinary composition, design and beauty. Her masterful still life and landscape paintings capture sitentions and appeal to senses. Nicolson's work is in mady prestigious collections, including that of the Kresge Foundation. She is affiliated with many Michigan galleries, including the Cranbrook Academy of

Art Beat

Art Museum, Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association, Detroit Institute of Arts, Saper Gallery in East Lansing, Lansing Art Gallery and Ann Arbor Art Association.

In the upper gallery to July 17 is a show by-printmaker William Stolpin, who studied under internationally known lithographers Emil Woddigo and Robert Nelson. He size studied at the Cranbrook Azademy of Art, University of Michigan-Flint and many other institutions. He has two prints in the permanent collection of the National Air and Space Museum of the Smithsonian Institution.

M PRINTS CHARMING

Stewart & Stewart, 5571 Wing Lake Road in Bloomfield Hills, is now a member of the International Fine Print Dealers Association. The printer and publisher of fine art prints since 1980 also announces three new releases by Richard Bosman and Janet Fish and five new releases by Chicago artist John Himmelfarb. Call (610) 626-5248.

Boampan an Australian artist known for his celeases by Antergo artist donn ritimmeliars. Call (610) 628-6248.

Bosman, an Australian artist known for his nec-expressionist landscapes, has created two new screenprints. Shore Line* and *Landfall-Pila, an American artist known for her energotic still lifes, has completed her newest screenprint, *A.M.* Himmeliarb* Notos of Appeal, *Bort Order, *Fax Appeal, *First Draft* and Whits Out* continue his playful expiration of letterforms and their changing meaning in our culture.