Garden City Collegiate baseball coach Fred Holton has heard the whispers around the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League.

After Friday night's key 4-3 win over Walter's Appliance at Livonia's Ford Field, Holton was prepared to fire back.

If there is a coach in the LCBL filling a protest about Garden City using two ineligible players, Holton said he has proof of their eligibility, Holton would rather talk about Garden City being undefeated in its last 10 games (nine wins and a tis) than about elligibility, but he was eager to set the record straight.

The two players in question are from Livonia and to join Garden City needed releases before the season from Livonia-based teams Walter's and Little Cessars. Walter's and Little Cessars. Walter's and Little Cessars. Walter's and Little Cessars. Walter's and Little Cessars.

ter's coach Harvey Weingarden, who took over prior to the season when Mike Keller decided to take the summer off from coaching, had no comment.

the summer off from coaching, had no comment.

"Somebody filed (a protest) and said we had two ineligible players," Holton said. "We have both releases, or them signed January 16, 1994, by Walter's coach Mike Keller and Little Cessars coach John Moraitia. I had a meeting with (LCBL co-director) Lyle (Trudell), showed him the releases and he said they were two legal players."

Friday's victory moved Garden City to 12-9-1 overall (25 points), seven points ahead of Walter's (9-12-1, 18 points) for the fourth and final playeff spot. Each team has eight games remaining. "When we were 3-9, no one was saying (about ineligibility), now that we've won nine and tied
