Do your part to help clear the air.

630,000 households already are.

Ozone high in the stratosphere protects us from dangerous sunlight. But, ozone near the ground, where we breathe, is a pollutant which causes health problems for the young, the elderly and those with pre-existing respiratory ailments. Ozone is formed when the hot sun "bakes" unburned hydrocarbons from tailpipe emissions, fuel evaporation and smokestacks.

We are doing better.

For more than 15 years, businesses and individuals have spent millions of dollars to reduce the hydrocarbon emissions which produce ozone. As a result, Southeast Michigan has met federal ozone standards for three years. But, if the region violates those standards this summer, automobile emissions testing will become more expensive and businesses will be required to spend an additional $55 million annually on emission controls - a cost that would be passed along to consumers.

The Clean Air Coalition of Southeast Michigan is a business, industry and government partnership to improve and maintain the region's air quality. The Coalition identifies as Ozone Action! days those hot summer days when higher ozone levels are likely. On those days, business and the public are asked to take no-cost and low-cost voluntary actions to reduce emissions.

It's working!

An estimated 630,000 households are participating in Ozone Action! days. Ozone levels have remained within federal standards on seven action days this summer. On two of those days the ozone levels remained barely below the standard. The voluntary efforts of more than a million people in those households undoubtedly helped prevent exceeding the standard.

Clip the List: Join the Action.

Join the Ozone Action! now. Clip the Ozone Action! Tips section and put it on your refrigerator or bulletin board. Take one or more of those no-cost and low-cost actions each time on Ozone Action! day happens. (In fact, many of those tips are a good idea all the time.)

4. Make certain your gas cap is tightly sealed.
5. Turn off engines, rather than idling them.
