Original bandwriting that is also legible calls for the courage of an independent mind. I believe our writer's need for independence began very early in life. Vertical writers are soldon spontaneous people. Today's writer is reserved and coutwelly poised, the tends to Acte the feelings under our before her heart. She hims things through before mind coestings a section or taking acceptance of the people before her heart. Only view of the people before her heart of the heart of

This young woman is self-disciplined and can get right down to the essentials without wasting time. Her work is geared toward efficiency.

She is or time-aware and uses her time and the state of the self-ctively. Someone for time is one of the major contributions to success! Delays she dislikes. When she wants something, she wants it now!

She appears to have a penchant for figuring out ways to create labor-awing ideas to achieve quick results with the least expenditure of time and energy. At times she can't be bothered with small details, or may have someone else covering them for her.

Seemingly, she was raised in a female-dominated home. And while she is independent in many area, I can see she may still have rather strong ties to the mother figure.

Within the writer is a desire to the outstanding and a need for status and stroking. She places an inordinate amount of importance

Although my next statement may sound paradoxical, I feel I must mention it. She is also a private person who needs time alone to pursue inner resources and talents.

Her aignature is connected be-tween the first, middle and last name. This is often the sign of one who considers herself to be a leader who can connect not only thoughts but ideas.

I think her arsenal of traits for success should be good, providing she doesn't forget to give others credit where it is due.

Amazing man: George Spencer, 91, daily tends four bird feeders and four bird houses that are home to house wrens. The birds eat four pints of feed each day. "And by night they clear it up," Spencer said. His son, Robert Spencer, builds the houses. Aside from the birds, Spencer also takes care of an flower garden that is constantly ablush in color. That's in addition to maintaining his downtown Farmington house. Spencer has lived there 40 years and before that he lived in what is now Farmington Hills for seven years.
