Hédy Hwang, Ebony magazine executive editor, Lerone Bennett Jr., Chicago first lady Margaret Corbett Daley and Anne Cox Chambers, former U.S. ambassador to Belgium.

The group met at the White House in September, talking about how the arts and humanities help life in America, and has scheduled another meeting for Dec. 2.

The federal, state and local governments together provide only a small percentage of the support essential to our cultural life," Clinton said in making the appointments. "These appointments underscore the vital partnership between the government and the private citizens who do so much to enrich and preserve the arts and humanities in our country."

At a time when our society faces new and profound challenges, when we are losing so many of our children, and when so many people feel insecure in the face of change, the arts and humanities are fundamental to our lives as individuals and as a nation."

"The president and Mrs. Clinton are very involved in everything this committee is going to be doing," Berman said.

Clinton wants people from the private sector who have worked on state levels to bring their expertise to look at increasing awareness of the arts and humanities and at increasing support by the private sector for the arts and humanities, Berman said.

"I'm very excited to be working on a national level."

Arts important

The corporate world should understand the arts aren't fluff but are important to creative problem solving, and are a significant part of our lives, Berman said.

Goals 2000: Educate America Act, legislation aiming to restructure and improve America's educational system, sets national standards and assessments in English, math, science, history, civics, geography, arts and foreign language.

"(Art) should be for everyone. It should be a part of the curriculum."

Background

Berman was born in Detroit in 1927 and earned a degree in music from Northwestern University and a master's degree in speech, communication and journalism from Wayne State University.

As special projects director for the Detroit Central Business District Association, she planned public performances of theater, music and dance in the city's public parks. She helped pioneer auction activities to raise money for public television and took part in creating the Friends of WDET, public radio, in conjunction with WSU.

Berman was a member of New Detroit's Arts Committee, and helped initiate and implement a plan to establish the first Detroit Arts Council. Mayor Coleman Young appointed her as one of seven original members of that panel.

The arts advocate was an early board member of Concerned Citizens for the Arts in Michigan, and now is on the CCAM executive committee. She originated the idea of the Michigan Governors' Arts Awards, which mark their 10th anniversary next week.

Gov. William Milliken named Berman to the Michigan Council of the Arts in 1981. Governor James Blanchard named her vice chairperson in 1983.

Berman has served on the boards of the Detroit Community Music School, the Archives of American Art and the Music Hall for the Performing Arts. She is on the board of Detroit Symphony Orchestra Hall.

Artours set

The Community House in Birmingham presents a Saturday series of "Artours," in which students visit artists' studios and galleries and discuss current ideas and issues in the art community with the artists.

The next Artour is 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 19. Cost is $30. Students will visit Artours in Hamtramck and the studios of artists Marcia Freedman, Claudia Shepard, Angel Davis and Sue Logan.

To register, call the program department at (810) 644-5832 between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. and use a MasterCard or Visa. Fax registrations are also accepted at (810) 644-2476.

Tour guide, artist and presenter Christine Welch will be at students at The Community House, 380 S. Bates, arrange car pools and provide informational maps and newsletters. Those not wishing to meet first at The Community House may arrange to receive the map and schedule ahead of time.

Violin extravaganza slated

Italy's most promising violin makers — Ardoli, Goh, Tadioli and Spertza — will travel across the Atlantic to participate in Lake and Wilson Fine Violins' First Autumn Exposition and Sale of Classic Instruments by Italian Makers next week.

This four-day extravaganza will take place Monday-Thursday, Nov. 14-17, at Lake and Wilson Fine Violins, in Adams Square at 725 S. Adams, between 14 and 15 Mile in Birmingham. For more information, call Lake and Wilson Fine Violins at (810) 258-1125.

The exposition will be open 1-8 p.m. Monday-Wednesday and 1-6 p.m. Thursday. Italian delicacies will be served. A concert finale will take place 8 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 17, featuring the Vinewood Quartet performing pieces from Haydn and Mendelssohn on the visiting makers' instruments.

The concert will be at the Mercy High School Little Theatre, with proceeds going toward the school's string program. Immediately after the performance will be an afterglow to bring the maestros, makers and aficionados together.

Among the other violins featured and available for sale at the event will be Oboardi, Vigato, Negroni, Carlson, Bergonzi, Zavanella, Aromatici, Fausto, Gori, Degani, Siega, Carletti and Diastolotti.

Included will be several miniatures on historic and modern perspectives as well as the evolution and development of today's violin in Cremona via the Stradivari.
