Entries sought

The Creative Arts Center of North Oakland County, 47 Williams in Pontiac, is calling for entries for separate exhibits.

For more information, call the center at (810) 333-7849.

Off-site exhibitions: The CAC provides a slide registry for artists interested in exhibiting and/or selling their work at various locales throughout the metropolitan area throughout the year.

Up to 20 slides may be submitted with name, title, medium, date, price and top of work indicated on each slide. A resume and statement about the work should also be submitted. A $10 registry fee is waived for members of the center.

First all-media in-state art inventory: An exhibit of current work by Michigan artists in all media will be juried by Paul Kotula, director of Revolution: A Gallery Project, a Ferndale gallery. The exhibit will take place Jan. 10 to Feb. 11.

Work will be juried from submission of up to 20 slides received no later than Tuesday, Nov. 22. A $15 entry fee is waived for members of the center.

Grow with classes

McFarland Florist and Greenhouses presents its fall lineup of seminars aimed at gardeners of all ages and all stages.

All workshops take place Saturdays, last about one hour and are at McFarland's, 28915 Grand River, four blocks east of Middlebelt in Farmington Hills. For more information, call McFarland's at (810) 474-0760.

As a kickoff to National Education Week, youngsters are invited to join master gardener Betti Pool 10 a.m. Nov. 12 as she presents the hands-on workshop, "Movin' Up the Stem: How Plants Use Water." National Education Week closes 10 a.m. Nov. 19 with adults learning to "Make Your Own Cornucopia." The Nov. 19 class has a $20 materials fee.

"McFarland's mission is to help its customers improve the quality of their lives," said Mary Lore, president and owner. "Gardening makes people feel great and gets kids and adults back in touch with the environment."

"New gardeners and gardeners with busy schedules will be interested in our fall lineup. Fall gardening is very easy and the results in the spring are spectacular and care-free!"

Work on wreaths

The Detroit Garden Center will present a holiday wreath workshop 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 16.

Decorate a grapevine wreath with dried and freeze-dried flowers, fruit and vegetables. Jan Busse, professional fine artist and instructor, will instruct. The $40 class fee includes all materials.

Class size is limited. For reservations, call (313) 252-6363. The Detroit Garden Center is at 1460 E. Jefferson in historic Moross House, 1/4 mile east of the Renaissance Center.

So fresh-looking is the floral material preserved by freeze drying, Observer & Eccentric columnist Linda Backrach wrote, "The flowers look as though you just picked up a nature and walked through the woods plucking your favorite blooms to arrange for a beautiful keepsake."
