I have been reading your column for several years and have always wanted to send you a sample of my writing, but due to time and the inability to make the letter flow just right I have procrastinated. Even today, I have thrown away several attempts of this letter, but with the encouragement of a friend who won't let me give up on this, I've done it.

I am 33 years old and am right-handed. I see changes in my handwriting when my moods are different, but I believe this is my normal handwriting. Thank you for considering my letter and I hope you find it interesting.

S.B., Livonia

Today's large, right-slanted handwriting quickly brings to mind a socially oriented young woman. She likes to be on the go and enjoys people and activities with them. Her caring heart reaches out to others with love and understanding. It would be difficult for our writer to conceal her feelings as her body language would give her away. Sad movies or stories can start the tears rolling.

Our writer is able to focus on the large picture of things while still retaining a feeling for and attention to all details. Just mention an apple and she can envision the whole orchard.

A very retentive memory is also seen here. This is an asset in furnishing her mind with information and eliminates the time-consuming need to search it out again.

Loyalty is visible throughout this handwriting. She is loyal to her friends and also to her beliefs. I suspect she has friends who have been with her a long time. Her behavior usually conforms to the standards of her social group. She wants to be accepted and well-thought of by them.

Optimism rides on every line of this handwriting. If this is characteristic of her handwriting on most days I feel confident we can be certain of an upbeat person who has faith in a higher being.

A sense of pride about most of the things she does can be seen. This can inspire her to live up to others' expectations as well as her own. She can organize her daily routine quite well, that is until something comes along that she would rather do. Then she is tempted to procrastinate a little.

I have been reading your column for several years and have always wanted to send you a sample of my writing, but due

She can be flexible. Do I see some unfinished projects here?

This is not a long-range planner. She is more inclined to plan as she becomes involved in a task or project.

As I continue to analyze this handwriting I feel there is a young woman here just waiting to develop into the beautiful flower she is destined to become.

Seemingly, she grew up in a traditional home, hearing more "shoulds" and "should not" than acceptance. She has been under the influence of someone with a strong personality. Her need to be independent and follow her own star probably brought out some rebelliousness. Perhaps this explains the anxiety I find.

She has made some significant breaks with tradition and now knows better where she wants her life to go. At times, however, she may still feel torn by the past. These ambivalent feelings can cause indecision for her.

There is a little intuition in this handwriting. It can, if trusted, give her insight into other people's thoughts and feelings. It can also effectively direct her through difficult situations by relying on her "hunches."

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 38251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and signature are all helpful and feedback is always welcomed.
