Friends' School, Saffron Walden, England, with an advanced level General Certificate of Education in Botany, Zoology and Geography. His academic achievements include diplomas from Essex Institute of Agriculture, Wildlife, England, and the University of Leicester, England, and a certificate from the Royal Botanic Gardens in Kew.
 "My interest in the wide diversity of plants, together with their ornamental value in enhancing the aesthetic appeal of gardens has afforded me many opportunities to travel, lecture and write," he said. "I have always been interested in the history of English gardening, and derive great pleasure and satisfaction from creating and working practically with my wife in our South Carolina garden."

The seminar will conclude with a question-and-answer session with the speakers.
