Dinner to raise money for marrow donor search

A dinner will be held Friday, March 31, to raise money for Lisa Petro, a Livonia resident who must raise $100,000 to cover the costs of finding a bone marrow donor.

Petro has a pre-leukemia medical condition and needs a bone marrow transplant. The cost of finding a donor, which could amount to $100,000, is not covered by insurance. So far, Petro has raised about $60,000.

The dinner, sponsored by the Italian American Club of Livonia, will be in the Italian American Banquet Center, 39200 Five Mile at 1-275, Livonia. The activity runs from 6:30 p.m. to midnight. Dinner will be served at 7:30 p.m. The charge is $50 per person. For reservations, make checks payable to "My Friends Care," and mail to P.O. Box 5, Farmington 48332. For further information, call Gori at (313) 538-7558.

Dinner consists of antipasto and soup, a combination New York strip and chicken piccata dinner, family-style pasta, potato, vegetable, dessert, coffee, beer, wine and pop.

Master of ceremonies is Roger Weber of WDIV-TV, Channel 4. Exotic trips and other prizes will be raffled off.

Botsford to host diabetes forum

Botsford General Hospital in Farmington Hills will host "Diabetes VIP (Very Informed Person)" on Saturday, March 25.

The day-long forum, which is being offered to individuals diagnosed with diabetes and those with whom they share their lives, will feature sessions focusing on how to take control of managing diabetes.

A keynote address will be delivered by Catherine Feste, author of "The Physician Within." Feste, who has lived with diabetes for more than 30 years, will speak on the psychosocial and spiritual dimensions of discovering well-being while facing a chronic disease. She will discuss how to learn to cope, find support and maintain hope.

The event will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Botsford Hospital, 28050 Grand River, Farmington. Registration fee is $25 per person and will include lunch, refreshments, displays and a simulated "grocery" tour.

Pre-registration is required. Additional information may be obtained by calling 477-6100.
