

N. Farmington students schooled in video work

MARY LINDA CALDERONE

As they say in the TV biz, "lights, camera, action." And there's plenty of action at the TV-10 studio at North Farmington High School these days.

Under the guidance of top notch instructors Dean and Sue Cobb, and Dave Wertheimer, our children have the opportunity to learn the ins and outs of TV production.

Producing quality video entails brainstorming, organization, problem solving and team work. Not bad, huh — to be able to master these skills as well as high school, then take them on to college and later to the work place?

North Farmington High School seniors are busy as bees working on their final projects producing videos for their class as well as shooting a full contingent of spring concerts, talent shows, and softball and track meets.

Aside from the kid stuff, the Cobbs are quick to point out, "TV-10 connects on an adult level as well."

Stay tuned May 11 from 7-9 p.m. for a live discussion program entitled, "Face the Facts." The subject is Attention Deficit Disorder. Noted authorities on the panel will include Ross Buckley and Barb Fisher, as well as other experts from the school district.

Adults and students will have ADD under the hand to discuss the issue as well. Be sure to watch and find out more about this easily misunderstood and oftentimes hard-to-diagnose disorder. The Cobbs encourage home viewers to call in during the program. Plans are in the works to simultaneously cablecast the show on TV-10 and INFO TV-12.

Learn what's on the mind of the Farmington School Superintendent, Dr. Robert Maxfield when you watch "From the Desk of Dr. Bob Maxfield." You'll hear all about the restructuring process that is going on in the district, as well as, "Mission 2007." This is Dr. Maxfield's vision as to how our school district should be operating in the year 2007. That's when this year's kindergarteners will be graduating.

Then there's "In Touch" — a program devoted to personal and special events happening in the schools. Each show includes a weekly update of important school happenings to mark on the calendar. You'll meet the teachers of the year. Did you know that Farmington Public School's bus inspection was evaluated at 100 percent safe? That's very rare. Learn about the school's wonderful bi-lingual program that our district offers to suit the needs of our multi-cultural community.

And, yes, that wonderful day in June — graduation day for all three high schools at Chrysler Arena in Ann Arbor will be taped and shown on TV-10. Kudos to parent volunteers, Don Carter, Jim Sturdy and Sue Gianetta for helping in the production of the taping of this special event as well as other programs on TV-10.

This year is the 10th anniversary of TV-10. Plans to celebrate this big event are in the works. Watch TV-10 for more details.

P.S. Something's up! Dean Cobb states, "look for a fresh new approach to TV-10 next fall. We're really excited about the change." You have our interest! piqued now Dean. We'll be tuning into TV-10.

Manor names director

Judy Ensor Lee has been named executive director of Detroit Baptist Manor.

Her duties administering leadership to this senior housing development in Farmington Hills commenced on April 3. She comes with extensive post-graduate training in family systems theory and therapy and has a certificate in gerontology from Minneapolis Community College.

Lee has over 17 years of experience in the development and management of housing facilities and support services for the elderly. She was formerly the executive director of Community Housing Management Corporation and Community Aging Corporation in St. Louis, Mo.

In that capacity she was responsible for the operation of three subsidized apartment complexes, an assisted living facility, and a variety of related support service programs.

Lee has developed programs, lectured and consulted extensively for both local and national organizations. She has been a featured speaker at national conferences of the American Association of Homes and Services for the Aging.

Musical Feasts festival to aid Detroit Symphony Orchestra

Bill and Florine Mark Ross of Farmington Hills will be opening the eighth annual Musical Feasts festival to benefit the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

Musical Feasts is a festival of dining and music presented by various hosts across Michigan.

The opening event at the Mark Ross home in Farmington Hills is a Springtime Revue, 2-6 p.m. Saturday, May 13.

The hosts' home is open to 100 guests and will include a Weight Watchers repast of Spring Vegetable Soup, Pecan Coated Brie, Stuffed Mushrooms, Spinach Quiche, Roast Potatoes Wedges and Crudités with Toasted Onion Cream and Salsa.

Hors d'oeuvres will be followed by Weight Watchers desserts like Coconut Macadamia Kisses, Lemon Poppy Crisp and cookies.

Detroit Symphony Orchestra musicians Bryan Kennedy on the French horn, Kevin Good and William Lucas on trumpet, Randall Hawes on trombone and Wesley Jacobs on tuba will perform.

The revelry is open to the public for $35 a person. All money will benefit the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. Reservations can be made by phone with a credit card by calling the DSOH Volunteer Council Office at (313) 962-1000 ext. 225. For more information call (810) 851-6691 or (313) 368-2909.
