

Botsford hosts run

Botsford Center for Health Improvement and the city of Novi are sponsoring the fifth annual "Run for the Health of It" on Sunday, June 11.

The race features an 8K run, 5K walk and 8K wheelchair race. Proceeds will benefit Novi Youth Assistance.

"Run for the Health of It" starts at 9 a.m. at the Botsford Center for Health Improvement, 39750 Grand River in Novi.

The entry fee is $12. Tank shirts are guaranteed to early registrants. Registration for the race/walk is $5.

For more information, call 473-5600.

among local readers and will be edited to provide useful information in a colorful package," said Susan Rosiek, Observer managing editor.

Planning your weekend will be a lot easier with the Thursday Arts & Entertainment calendar, which will tell you what's happening, where and when. Whether it's rock bands, the local symphony, gallery openings or the circus in town, you'll find it first in Thursday's Arts & Entertainment calendar.

Street Scene will continue its coverage of popular music and local bands in the new section. We'll also be expanding our coverage of jazz and classical music.

The new sections have been developed with readers, consumers and advertisers in mind.

Susan Rosiek
Observer managing editor

Our theater coverage will tell you about what's happening with theatrical groups in our communities as well as what's happening with area professional theaters.

The Observer will continue to offer the most complete coverage of museum and gallery events and the local fine arts community.

Keely Wygonik will edit the Arts & Entertainment section. Readers can contact her at (313) 953-2105.

At Home will help you make your home more attractive and more enjoyable. Packaged in a convenient tabloid section, At Home will put the focus on home life. Our coverage of interior design and gardening will take you into the homes of your neighbors who will share their enthusiasms and good taste with you. We'll also provide you with some expert advice on decorating, antique collecting, home remodeling, appliance upkeep and new electronic marvels for the home.

We'll also take a look at home activities including hobbies, the latest books (especially those by local authors), videos, photography and nature.

Mary Klemic will edit At Home. Readers can contact Klemic at (810) 901-2569.

The new Real Estate section will provide a new editorial package for the most complete real estate advertising section in Metro Detroit. We'll keep you abreast of what's happening in the real estate industry, answer your questions about property law, give you up-to-date information on mortgages and the mortgage process, and tell you about exciting new housing developments in the Observer area. Doug Funke is the Observer real estate reporter.

Heading up this new features team is Hugh Gallagher. He will be joined by Barry Jensen, editor, and Jack Glasden, copy editor.

Gallagher, an assistant managing editor, has 24 years of newspaper experience, including 12 years of entertainment reporting and editing. He was entertainment editor for the Lorain Journal in Lorain, Ohio, and entertainment writer and arts critic for the Albuquerque Journal in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

Gallagher has been the copy desk supervisor and production editor for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers for the past nine years.

"We're excited about the new direction we'll be taking in these sections," Gallagher said. "We have an experienced and enthusiastic staff. We'll be encouraging reader involvement and feedback as the weeks go on. We believe this is a better package for our readers."

Readers can contact him at (313) 953-2118.

Quads visit Farmington Hills

Just '4' fun: Bill and Mildred Burke of Farmington Hills last week had their quadruplet grandchildren from Boston for a visit. The 7-month-old babies are (from left) Kathryn, Brendan, Kelley and James. Their parents, 1973 North Farmington graduates, are Brian and Carrie Burke.
