

Ex-S'craft player joins Neon

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
DEPT WRITER

Former Schoolcraft College soccer star Chris Crawford has earned a job with the Detroit Neon of the Continental Indoor Soccer League.

Crawford feels like a king with the Neon, and not just because they play their home games at the Palace of Auburn Hills.

Crawford last summer had a disappointing stint with the Detroit Wheels, a professional outdoor team based in Troy.

Crawford said getting paid was a problem with the Wheels.

"I just didn't like the way we were being treated," said Crawford, a defender. "They don't treat you like human beings."

Crawford hadn't played in the Neon's first three games, all losses. But coach Chris Keenan was thinking about shaking up his team following Thursday's 6-5 loss to first-place Monterrey at the Palace.

"I expect him to get a game in the near future," Keenan said. "As a rookie, you have to be willing to open the page and learn the game."

Crawford joins another former Schoolcraft player, goalkeeper Colin Jex, who has been with the Neon since the team joined the CISL in 1994.

Jex, a 1988 Dearborn High graduate, is one of three goalkeepers on the Neon roster.

Jex, who has yet to suit up for the Neon, also acts as a goalkeeper coach.

"I'm like a jack of all trades, but I'm a player, first and foremost," said Jex, who works full-time as a benefits consultant for Benepo in Royal Oak. "I'm like an insurance policy for the team. This is something I always wanted to do."

The CISL believes it has a good chance of survival because it has franchises in some of the nation's biggest markets.

Along with Detroit, the CISL has franchises in Houston, Las Vegas, Anaheim, Calif., Dallas, Pittsburgh, Washington and Seattle.

Eight of the 15 CISL franchises have backing from National Hockey League or National Basketball Association owners, according to the Neon director of operations Dave Baker.

"Nothing against (National Professional Soccer League members) Canton (Ohio) or Harrisburg (Pennsylvania), but I'd be going to start a pro league, I don't know if those are the markets you look at," said Dave Baker, director of soccer operations for the Neon. "The NPSL is more of an East Coast type league. We're coast to coast."

It also helps the Neon to add marketable players like Andy "Superman" Chapman to the roster. Chapman, who used to play for the Detroit Rockers in the National Professional Soccer League, scored four goals in Thursday's 6-5 loss to Monterrey at the Palace.

He is among the CISL leaders with eight goals in three games. He is the third all-time leading scorer in indoor soccer history with 583 career goals.

Area players forge tie with Rockers

A group of local players, put together at the last minute, proved to be more than worthy opponents Saturday night for the Detroit Rockers.

The two teams battled to a 4-4 draw in an outdoor exhibition soccer match before an estimated 500 fans at Livonia Clarenceville High School.

"These guys we played are professional, and the key thing we proved is that we have some guys who can play at that level, too," said Jay Williford, who helped put together the Select team. "It was very interesting."

The Rockers, an indoor team that plays during the winter months in the National Professional Soccer League, were led by player-coach Pat Margetic's two goals.

Todd Webber and Bodgen Zurowski added goals for the Rockers.

Zurowski, 25, and Wojciech Krypkow, 38, both members of the Chicago Metropolitan League, were invited to play by Margetic to help fill out the Rockers' roster, which also included former area standouts Lars Richters (Livonia Stevenson "Yale University), Brian Thiel (Redford Catholic Central/Valparaiso) and Dominic Sciduna (Redford CC/Oakland University). Rockers All-NPSL goalkeeper Bryan "Goose" Finerty also played.

Craig Przygoda, a recent graduate of Troy Athens and headed for the University of Detroit Mercy, led the Select team with a pair of goals.

A pair of Butler University players, Casey Sweeney and Steve Weiger, had the other Select team goals.

The Select team also included goalkeeper Kai Krawski (Livonia Churchill/Detroit), Mike Gentile (Churchill/Wisconsin), Derek Williford (Stevenson/Oakland), Chris Gradzicki (Stevenson-Central Michigan), Kevin Callaway (Churchill/leaning towards Cleveland State), Sean Noble (Farmington High/headed for Michigan State) and Jeff Thomas (Stevenson/Detroit).

Birmingham-Detroit Country Day was also well represented by Adam Hunter (Cal-Berkeley), Taro Sciduna (Butler), Fred Olson and Neal Grude (Butler).
