joined by azzophonist Rick Mar-gitza, a New Oriensa native who attended the Juzz Studies pro-men at Wayne State University. Margitza has tourned with May-hard Ferguson, and performed briefly with Milies Davis. He has three CDs on the Blue Note label — "Color," "Hops," and "This is New."

The Saturday evening concert headlines several stars in the local firmament. Vocalist Harvey Thompson, whose CD. "Jazs is (Anything You Want it to Be)" has received considerable sir play, carries the torch of male vocalists such as Joe Williams, Mel Torme and Johnny Hartman. Thompson has appeared at the Montreux Detroit Jazz Festival several times, and performed in Europe and Japan.

Trumpeter Rayse Biggs has performed at many local venues including Orchestra Hall, and the Montreau Jazz Festival. A product of Marcus Belgrawe's Jazz Development Workshop, and Oakland University, Biggs has toured and recorded with the group "Was Not Was," and appeared with them on "Saturday Night Live." An actor, as well as musician. Biggs received the Theater Excellence Award for his portrayal of Lervee" in "Ma Rainey's Black Bottom."

Thompson and Biggs are sup-ported by an ensemble headed by planist-composer: Pamela Wise, who just released her second CD "Songo Festividad!" Six of the inse tunes on this CD were writ-ten by Wise. The CD also features Biggs and Michigan Jazz Master Wendell Hartison. Wise slao has veral Montreux Detroit appear ances to her credit.

director. There are 35 high school students cast in the show from 18 local high schools including Plymouth-Centon, West Bloomfield, Westland John Glenn, Livonia Franklin, Farmington, Livonia Churchill, Garden City, Clarenceville, Harisaon in Farmington, and Detroit Country Day.

Michael J. Sawawa of Garden

Michael J. Sawaya of Garden City, who grew up across the street from Cooney, is the pro-ducer. A Wayne County Deputy Sheriff, he and his wife, Meliusa, have a 3-year-old son, Andrew.

While Cooney and Dalian were on the road appearing in shows, Sawaya was home arranging auditions at 18 local high schools, and helping start Jumpstart the Arts, an independently financed project.

When we were kids we were constantly play acting," said Sawaya about Cooney, "When he offered me the challenge in Februs and recently appeared by the same property of the same propert stage has been a great experience.

The students who were involved were treated like professionals.
We're all very excited and nervous about opening night."
