failing to yield to an emergency vehicle. The woman was taken to Botsford Hospital. Her injuries were not believed to be serious.

"It looks like there was ample opportunity to see (the police car)." Goss said. "Two cars behind her saw the police car coming and heard it."

Hills (trefighters had to use the Jawa of Life to remove Patterson from the vehicle. Impact caused the door frame to buckle, which prevented access from the passen-ger side.

Firefighters had to cut through extensive metal, including the protective cage behind the front seat.

"They are having a lot of prob-lems because of the extra things they have in those cars," said
