FREE FOR STOMACH AND BOWELS

We are in receipt of letters from Eva Gaskins, 304 Madison St., Sta. Kan., and Mr. R. H. Gavel, Wagoner, Okla., as well as many others, telling about the wonderful results they have secured in the cure of stomach and liver troubles by use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This remedy, as all readers doubtless know, has been before the public for a generation and is now being used extensively by many other people for stomach, liver and bowel ailments. According to reliable testimony, it seems to be a very quick and lasting cure for constipation, indigestion and dyspepsia, liver troubles, nervousness, headaches, sour stomach, gas on the stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar disorders. It is a liquid with tonic effect, and so mid and gentle in action that a child as well as a grown person can take it, in fact, it has no equal for children, women and old people. It arouses the flow of gastric juice, and by a peculiar action trains the stomach and bowel muscles to again do their work naturally, and in time medicines of all kinds can be dispensed with. A free sample bottle can be had for trial by sending your address to the doctor, for in this way Mrs. Gaskins, Dr. Gavel and many others first learned of the cure. Later, when satisfied it is the remedy you need, do as others are doing and buy it of your druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle. For the free sample address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 402 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

The D. U. R. increased the car service on this division last Sunday and the cars were all pretty well filled. The lure of the country is becoming irresistible to the city folks. They delight to get out where the air is fresh and pure and where the grass grows green. They love to see the blue of the sky without looking through a haze of smoke.

At Oxford the four Pontiacers, who were tried for killing two elk were acquitted by a jury. The elk were the last of a herd owned near Pontiac and had escaped from the enclosure and wandered over near Milford. The owner gave the men permission to shoot them to prevent damage being done to the farm crops. Damage suits had previously been instituted against the owner, when his elk escaped from the corral and the game warden had refused to help protect them because they were private property, but interfered when the owner ordered them shot.

It always is a good plan to search the local stores for what you need before going to the city to trade. Very likely you will find what you want and it is a cinch that the price will be lower. Those city fellows are not working entirely for their health.

The city fellows are all artists in displaying their goods. They can make a piece of Joe stuff look like half a dollar, but when the buyer reaches home it is a thirty center just the same. If our local trades men would cultivate their artistic talents along the same line they might sell more goods and would doubtless make more money until some irate customer killed them off with a big club. We put up with conditions in the city that we will not stand for in the country.

Death of Mrs. McClure

The funeral of Mrs. Frances A. McClure was held Wednesday afternoon from her late home in Farmington the services being conducted by Rev. George Gullen, the Methodist pastor, of which church she had been a devoted and consistent member for many years.

Her death, which occurred at an early hour Sunday morning, followed the severe shock which she received a few weeks ago when her son-in-law, Charles Granthum, met with an accidental death on the tracks of the D. U. R. near Farmington Junction. The excitement at the time of the burning of the W. P. Payne house on the opposite side of the street also helped to strengthen and probably helped to hasten the end.

Mrs. McClure was born in the state of New York and was nearly 75 years of age. When a babe she was brought to Redford by her parents and afterwards moved to Farmington where she had resided for nearly half a century.

She was held in high esteem by a large circle of friends who deeply sympathize with the relatives.

A daughter, Mrs. Ethel Granthum, a brother, James Hendryx, both of Farmington, and a sister who resides in Ionia county, survive.

If you have a farm or town property for sale or desire to dispose of a horse, cow or other personal property, or want to hire a man or a little want ad. Or if you want to purchase real estate or personal property the same means will be effective.

Telephone your "wants" and see what results you get.
