matter of stopping them."

Green allegedly drove the vehicle.

Units from Detroit and Farmington joined Hills police in the chase that went south on Southfield to Schoolcraft, then to Schaefer. The Neon ended up sideways in front of a Hills police cruiser at Grand River and Schaefer. Two males fled the car on foot and the female driver drove off and was captured a few minutes later by Hills police.

A witness to the chase saw one of the two men throwing a pistol onto the roof of the post office on Schoolcraft at Leisuro before being captured. The gun was recovered by Hills police. A second pistol was found on one of the suspects after his arrest.

A sweatshirt and running shoes believed to be thrown from the car during the chase were also found along Grand River by Hills police.

According to police accounts, the incident began when a Farmer Jack employee was approached from behind by two armed men while he was on the telephone at the service desk. According to police, he was ordered to open the safe, but told the intruders he'd get the night manager.

One of the men waited at the service desk while the other accompanied the worker to the rear of the store, the account continued. There, the gunman ordered the manager to the service desk area and demanded the safe be opened. When the manager wasn't able to open the safe, one of the men reportedly threatened to kill him and then ordered both employees to lie down.

Meanwhile, the other man forced a cashier to open her register and warned her not to hit any buttons. The gunmen took approximately $500, which was put into a blue leather bag with a drawstring. The cashier was also ordered to lie down before the two men fled the store through the front entrance.

Both men wore jackets with hoods pulled over their faces, police said. They also had their chins and mouths covered during the robbery. One of the men wore gloves. Workers described seeing two, short barrel six shot revolvers on the two men during the holdup.

One of the recovered guns, a Colt revolver, was reported stolen out of Detroit, police said. Both weapons were loaded. Police recovered $548.
