

O&E photographer joins legends in hall of fame

Observer & Eccentric photographer Art Emanuele was recently named to The International Photography Hall of Fame and Museum in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

The hall of fame honors those who have made significant contributions to the development of photography.

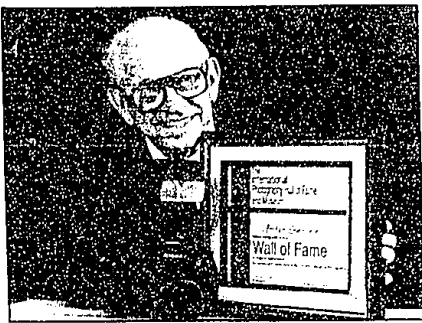

The museum commemorates the history, science, art, people, events and place that have shaped photographic destiny.

The International Photography Hall of Fame and Museum is a salute to the development, technical advancement, use and eye-stopping power of the photographic image.

The museum is also home to the world's largest photo-mural, a 360-degree landscape of the Grand Canyon.

Emanuele's photographs join those of other photographic legends such as Ansel Adams, Matthew Brady, Margaret Bourke-White, Louis Daguerre and George Eastman in the museum at the Kirkpatrick Center Museum Complex in Oklahoma City.

Emanuele, 75, has been a professional news photographer for 58 years. Before joining the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers in
