Hughes said. "He loved to go fishing, hunting and spend a lot of time out of doors. And he was very safety oriented."

Hughes said his uncle had even set up the procedure of meeting at time intervals to make sure everyone was OK.

"That's exactly how they found that he was in trouble," Hughes said.

The father of six had not been wearing a safety harness at the time, Sheriff Weyer said. But Hughes, an Ann Arbor resident, and Carolyn Fodor said he had stuck to a low-fat diet in recent years and had nitroglycerin tablets on him, just in case of problems.

"He was a very skilled hunter," Carolyn Fodor said. "It's not like he was some bumbling hunter. In fact his ski mask was off, which shows that he might have been having some kind of problem."

Marvin Fodor was a foreman at Rouge Steel, a subsidiary of Ford Motor Co. in Dearborn.

Many of his hunting friends cut short their trips to come to his funeral in Farmington Hills, Carolyn Fodor said.

"Once they heard about it, they came back from as far away as Wisconsin," she said.

She had been the first to arrive at the scene of a fatal hit-and-run accident Sept. 25.

"I had taken the younger brother (Stephen Klenke, 11) sort of under my wing after seeing that terribly mangled body," she said. "The Klenkes have been very supportive to me."

Marvin Fodor was born in Detroit and is survived by his wife Carolyn; daughters Jodi and Angela; sons Robert, Gregory, Benjamin and Joel; his mother Elizabeth and a brother.

Funeral arrangements were handled by McCabe Funeral Home on 12 Mile. Marvin Fodor was buried at Holy Sepulchre Cemetery in Southfield. Memorial tributes should go to the Michigan Lupus Foundation.

Listed below are some of the Farmington-area police incidents, fire calls and court cases reported during the past week.

POLICE/FIRE CALLS

Put the Farmington area on your wall

You can have a date — 366 of them, actually — with the Farmington area if you obtain a "Farmington Historical Calendar" for 1996 from the Farmington Hills Historical Commission. Submitted by David McKercher, a Dunckel Middle School student, as an entry to the 1995 Lee Peel Historical Research Contest, the calendar features photos of historic sites. Also, numerous area historical events are noted on the anniversary dates.

A limited number of the calendar are available for $6 each at the Farmington Hills City Hall, the Farmington Historical Museum and Metro Bank branches. Proceeds from calendar sales will be used by the Historical Commission to produce literature on local history.
