We Must Continue To Work and Pray for Human Rights

During this joyous holiday season, let us not forget that in other parts of the world there is no joyous holiday season because the people there are lacking in the most basic human rights. These include not only freedom of speech, but in some cases, even the right to live, denied through starvation, warfare and genocide against their own people.

We should let our elected leaders know that we want them to do whatever possible to relieve the suffering of those embattled souls; and thank God for our own rights, which we usually just take for granted and to which we seldom give any thought.

At our House of Worship, let us pray for those people, that they may one day be released from bondage and the constant threats against their very lives.

The function of freedom is to free everybody else. — Tom Moreau

...their cry came up to God by reason of their bondage. — Exodus 3:7
