The finale by the three Senior Free Skate teams before a capacity evening crowd was worth the price of admission itself, according to Modelz.

"The Canadian team did a routine to Michael Jackson songs, and all the girls on our club couldn't believe it," he said.

"I said to one of the workers 'How in the world can you pick between these three teams?' It was high quality skating. It was a quality way to wrap up the day."

Besides the skating conditions, the size of the arena was a benefit and comfort to the competitors, Modelz said.

"The skaters themselves really enjoyed this competition," he said. "Most times they don't get locker rooms. If they do, it's only for 10 minutes to change."

"Some clubs had a locker room for the whole day and thought it was fantastic. They put their skates in a locker as soon as they walked in, and they didn't have to worry about them all day."

Modelz hopes the event will be a boost for Farmington's attempt to organize precision teams, and he would like to bring a major event back to Farmington Hills in the future.

"They have a club going in Farmington, and they hope to have a team next fall. I think this will help them to do that," he said.

"We're very appreciative of the help from the Farmington staff and the tremendous amount of support we got."

"It's nice that two clubs could work together so well to pull off a big event. We hope it does foster a good relationship between the clubs."

Blazers oust Marlins in semifinals

Farmington Hills Mercy eliminated Allen Park Cabrini in the Catholic League volleyball playoffs Monday but ran into nemesis Livonia Ladywood in the next round.

The Marlins eked out a 16-14 win over the Monarchs in the first game of the quarterfinal match and whipped them in the second, 16-4.

Ladywood, playing on its own court, stopped Mercy in the semifinals with 15-7, 15-9 wins.

It was the third time this season Ladywood has beaten the Marlins, who are 21-10 overall.

The Blazers will travel around the corner tonight to play Birmingham Marlin in the championship match at Madonna University.

Senior Jamaica Emerson tried to keep Mercy in it, getting four of her six kills when Ladywood was on game point.

"But we can't wait until our backs are against the wall, until the 14th point of match, to play our hearts out," Mercy coach Peggy Spengler said.

pumped them up and got them going."

Erin Moug and Anne Ward served three aces each, Mooter and August two apiece.

Heidi Wahl was 19-of-21 on digs and 8-of-9 on serve receive. Kelly Moug had 14 digs and was perfect on seven serve receptions.

Spengler plans to bring three sophomores up to the varsity Monday after the JV team completes its season.

Defensive specialist Shayla O'Mara, 6-foot middle hitter Krista Kelly, and outside hitter Erin Fitzgerald will be available for late-season tournaments.

Senior Beth Jones and sophomore Kelly Moug had four kills each. Moug, who played all around for the first time, had only one error in 17 attacks and seven kill assists as the setter.

The Marlins faltered on the service line, however, with 10 errors in the second game.

Mercy had big contributions from unlikely places in the Cabrini match.

Kathy August, a setter who was hitting on the right side, had seven kills out of 15 hits and was 11-of-12 on digs.

Moug had one of her best hitting nights, according to Spengler, with six kills and just two mistakes in 23 attacks.

Emerson had seven kills and 25 chances, and Moug also managed to set the ball 48 times with 14 assists.

"(Mooter) had a real strong night and played well all the way around," Spengler said. "The team started slow and Sheyenne
