Arthritis Today JOSEPH J. WEISS, M.D. RHEUMATOLOGY 18829 Farmington Road Livonia, Michigan 48152 Phone: (810) 478-7860 UPDATE ON RHEUMATOID ARTHRITIS CURES From time to time you read a press release or see a TV clip of science news announcing a breakthrough in arthritis. You are lead to believe that a new therapy will sweep away the condition like a vaccine did to smallpox. The closer truth is that no such breakthrough occurred. Someone in charge of the news was misinformed or misled. What is happening is that drugs already in use, but given one at a time, had promise. When used in combination, can control inflammation better than any drug singly. However, physicians have not determined what combination is best, how to avoid side effects, and which individuals with rheumatoid arthritis are candidates for combination treatment. For the present, the use of daily anti-inflammatory medication plus special drugs such as gold, methotrexate, azathioprine, and immunin, provide the best chance for control of rheumatoid arthritis. Of equal importance is a reasonable way of life. If circumstances force you to work 6-7 days a week, and/or at a job that requires strong, standing, bending and constant movement, then no medicine will overcome the stress you place on already inflamed joints.

Spotlight on Physical Therapy & Sports Medicine KNEES ON THE MEND The most painful and troublesome of knee injuries involves the anterior cruciate ligament (ACL), which is a ligament vital to the knee's stability. Deviate subjects in other words, is the best option, an estimated 90-95% of injuries are prevented each year from the ACL. Twenty percent of the number however, never fully recover due to a buildup of scar tissue in the joint, which can be a debilitating as the original injury. Now, a new study of 100 patients who had been operated on at the University of Rochester Medical Center indicates that the incidence of arthroscopic reconstruction can be minimized by following simple recommendations. ACL patients are urged to postpone surgery for a week until swelling goes down. Second by beginning mild therapy, stretching and strengthening the knee and light strength training the day after surgery, patients can expect to significantly reduce chances of getting arthritis. MILD PHYSICAL THERAPY & SPORTS MEDICINE, P.C. stresses a more conservative, physical therapy treatment. Our therapists offer individualized treatment programs that focus on assisting patients to their own level of function. We insist on the use of adaptive methods and home exercises that are understood in an appropriate setting. Exercises and medications. The results of a consultation call us at (810) 478-7860. We are on weekdays by appointment, 11:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. and on Saturdays, 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. In the state's most advanced center, 25% of those who waited a week after surgery to undergo therapy, achieved arthroscopic while only 1% of those who began mild therapy the day after surgery, patients can expect to significantly reduce chances of getting arthritis.
