'Exotica' fascinating drama

BY LEANNE ROGERS
STAFF WRITER

During a recent trip to my local video store, I was pleased to find that "Exotica" one of my favorite films during 1995 had been released on VHS. I was however, horrified when I saw the box and read the description of the film, which made it sound like some sort of sleazy exploitation film. Nothing could be further from the truth. This engrossing film wasn't accurately promoted during its brief theatrical release and the video package is even worse.

I probably would have played up that fact that "Exotica" won the International Critics Prize at the Cannes Film Festival but what do I know about marketing. If you are looking for a film with a lot of nudity and sex, this isn't the movie for you. If you want to see a fascinating and well-acted drama about the obsessive ways people cope with their emotional injuries, then this will be the movie for you.

The title comes from an elaborate adult entertainment club where Revenue Canada auditor Francis, played by Bruce Greenwood, comes regularly to visit an exotic dancer, played by Mia Kirshner. Francis is a sad man, emotionally devastated by the murder of his young daughter. His visits to the club don't bring tensions to Francis but there is more there than appears at first glance.

Francis regularly picks up the books of the young dancer, who performs dressed as a school girl, aren't for the obvious or expected reasons.

I hesitate to reveal much more about the plot because the way the characters are revealed is part of what makes "Exotica" such an effective film. Written and directed by Atom Egoyan, the relationships between the all characters doesn't really become clear until the final scenes. Don't let the misleading packaging but you off a fascinating and wonderful film.
