Big Boy of Farmington - a neighborhood favorite

Big Boy of Farmington is well-known for more than its great food and service. It has a reputation as one of only three Big Boy restaurants retaining its original, California style design.

"It's a classic designed restaurant," said owner and manager George Darany. "I wanted to keep the integrity of the building when I took over and remodeled the restaurant two years ago."

The restaurant also maintains high standards of food quality and customer service from the past. "This is a neighborhood restaurant that does a lot to be involved with the community around it," added Darany. His Big Boy is located at 20788 Farmington Road, just north of Eight Mile in Farmington.

"We sponsor a fundraiser every year for Families in Action and support Farmington Partners in Education. We help the Farmington Philharmonic and feed all the seniors FREE, in the neighborhood at our annual Senior Breakfast. We sponsor a Family Night once a year, at which we feed all the kids for free and have a petting zoo and pony rides at the restaurant."

The Big Boy of Farmington employs as many as 50 people. "Our employees have a sense of family here. They don't want to leave and go work elsewhere," Darany added.

He said his Big Boy of Farmington has remained as successful as it is because everyone - from the servers to the chefs to the managers - follows his customer side up corporate strategy in running the business. It places the customers at the top, the employees next, the managers beneath them and himself the owner last. While this Big Boy provides the same food other Big Boys have, its neighborhood friendliness enhances whatever the waitstaff serves.

Hungry customers will find Big Boy of Farmington open from 6:30 a.m. to midnight Sundays through Thursdays and until 1 a.m. Fridays and Saturdays.
