Contest set for history buffs

Anyone interested in Farmington-area history take note: the Farmington Historical Society is sponsoring the 13th-annual Lee S. Peel Historical Research Writing Contest.

Anyone, except those judging the contest, may enter, and there are four categories: I. Elementary schoolers, grades 1-5; II. Middle schoolers, grades 6-8; III. High schoolers, grades 9-12; and IV.

college students and adults.

Submissions should be original work and must be submitted before Friday, April 5. Audio and video tapes, slides, photographs, and neatly written or printed texts are acceptable.

Sources may include personal recollections, interviews, family diaries or letters, old photographs, paintings and sketches.

First prize — the Lee S. Peel

Writing Award — will be $100, and second prize will be $50. Four best-in-category prizes of $25 each will be awarded. Winners will be announced at a ceremony in late May or early June at the Farmington Historical Museum.

The contest is named after Lee S. Peel, a prominent local educator, historian and author. For more information, call John Willard at 661-8915.
