Fire of paper carrier's van ruled arson

Farmington Hills police are investigating a fire that caused $8,000 in damage to a van that belongs to a man who delivers the Detroit Free Press.

The Free Press and the Detroit News have been the target of a strike that began last July. There have been several strike-related incidents reported in Farmington Hills.

The man had been walking his dog in northeast Farmington Hills March 29. When he returned Farmington Hills firefighters from Station 4 were on the scene and had doused the fire in his 1993 Ford Aerostar at 7:46 a.m.

The fire had started in the load carrying area among scrap newspapers. Although no gasoline or other accelerant was discovered, Hills police suspect foul play.

"There was a threatening phone call about two weeks before the fire," said Hills Detective Dave Lee. "They said, 'We know where you live.' We don't think this was accidental."

In addition to the damage to the van, there was $500 in damage to contents.
