been active in several committees involving O.E. Dunckel Middle School and Hillside Elementary.

Helen Prutow, who's finishing a 20-year career on the Farmington Board, is a member of the Oak-land Intermediate School District Board, a position she said she in-tends to keep. A devotee to public education, Prittow has attended numerous national state seminars and conferences.

There was a vacancy on the Farmington Board last year when Susan Lightner decided not to run for re-election. However, only two candidates turned out.

Nine hopefuls ran in 1993 when incumbent Juck Cotton didn't seek re-election.

Planning commissioner steps down

A "fixture" on the Farmington Hills Planning Commission went to his last meeting last month.

month.

Philip Arnold, 57, said he had planned to step down at the end of his term in January of 1997, but wanted out of the rough in time to enjoy a little more golf this summer. But lest you think Arnold was taking his planning commission duties less than seriously, consider that he served for 17 years.

"He's been a fixture on the commission," said City Planner Ed Gardiner.

Arnold, a 23-year resident of Farmington Hills, works as a finance specialist for Ford Mo-tor Company. He and his wife Judith have three grown children.

In addition to his long service on the planning commission, Arnold served on the city coun-Arnold served on the city coun-cil for one year, after being elect-ed by the council on the fifth ballot to fulfill the term of Jan Dolan who left to serve as state representative in Lansing in 1989.

1989.
Arnold said one of the biggest challenges the government body faced was getting the public involved in the master plan study that began last year.

"Contributing to the commu-nity has been satisfying," said Arnold, who spoke in a thought-ful, low-key manner at meet-ings. "I think planning commis-sioners, and city councilmen for that matter, are very dedicated."

Arnold said he had planned to finish his term and had told Mayor Aldo Vagnozzi that he would not ask for reoppointment. But a regular playing date on Thursday nights this summer, when the planning commission regularly meets, was to much.

"This is a group I've played with for years," he said.

A van, allegedly driven by Garcia, backed up to their Geo Track-er. The van followed the Tracker and shots were fired including the me that hit Lucal in the head. By agreeing to the delay, the de-fendants whived their right to a preliminary ezamination within 14 days of being charged, Judge Archer could not work the case into today's docket, which would have met the 14-day rule. "What we needed was some of the police statements, witnesses' statements and information about any line-ups," said Kinney, who is representing Waucaush. "Last week we called homicide, but they weren't ready. We expect to have that information by the
