"You almost have to be stupid to do it," said Terok, a bronze medalist in the pole vault at the Junior Olympies last aummer. "When you think about it, you bend a pole that could break at any time, you go upside down and hope you don't hit the bar and land on a mat. I don't think of myself as exceptional, Just do what they want me to do."

As good as he is in the pole yault, clearing 20 feet in the long jump was even more romarkable considering it was his only attempt this year.

Harrison was the pre-Relays favorite last year, but the Hawks' chances suffered when standout sprinter Kevin Bryant Injured his hamstring during the shuttle hurdles relay.

Bryant missed both the 400 and 800 relays. The Hawka' 400 relay team failed to place and the 800 relay team took second place, .03 behind Wayne Memorial rial.

"He missed the 400 and 800 and things kind of fell apart from there," Harrison coach John Reed said. "It'll probably be the most well-balanced team that wins it. If you have a lot of good distance runners, you can score a lot of points in that good distance runners, you can score a lot of points in that meet.

"John Glonn appears real strong in the field. Salem is real strong, too, in the shot put and distance, CC looks real strong, too, in the shot put and distance, and Northville could surprise some teams. They're real strong in the 400 and 800 areas."

The Hawks are looking to score some significant points in the sprint relays with Jason Granger, Keith Battle, Chris Knox, Jerrad Johnson and Jamie Seals.

Granger has the area's best long jump (22-11) and is tied with Wayne's Richard Buford for the best time in the 100 meter dash (10.8).
