The Blazers (10-13) thought Mercy's Lindsey Moeller had left the basepath going to second on the play and should have been the third out, leaving Ladywood with a 2-1 lead.

"We had one had inning with three errors, and I'm not going to blame it on the umps." Parsons said. "But that was not what I felt was a good call, with the runner running out of the basepath.

"I'm not going to blame (the loss) on that, but that was a turning point. I have no complaints about the way my kids played, and Cathy certainly deserved better than she got."

Falvo said he saw no problem with the call in favor of Moeller since runners are allowed three feet either side of the basepath.

Ladywood took a 2-0 lead in the fifth when Julie Szefler walked and scored on a single by Stacey Judd. The Blazers scored carlier when Palge Evan's triple sent Annie Bolognino home.

Evan had two hits, including a double, as did Grace Allen.
