

Homemade bread sticks, that's Italian

y introduction to making Italian-style bread sticks occurred a few years ago when Nick Malgieri, the man who wrote the book on "How To Bake," (copyright 1996. Harper-Collins Publishers, $37.50 appeared at a national food conference that I attended.

Nick told the assembled group of foodies about watching a baker in the Piedmont region of Italy make bread sticks The Graisain were so good that Nick solicited a rudimentary recipe on the spot. He then shared the recipe with the group. I recently found the recipe while purging my desk of mounds of recipes, publications and press releases that have gathered dust through the years. You get the idea. It's all those clippings of things that you say to yourself "gee, this sounds too good to pass up, I must make it," and seldom do, or find the time, or make the effort, or whatever. Until now.

The best reason to make homemade bread sticks is the assumption that bread stick recipes are rather easy to follow, somewhat forgiving, and that bread sticks or many things to many people. Everyone who loves bread sticks thinks of his or her favorite version — thick or thin, tender or crisp, seasoned, salty or plain — as their own personal favorite.

Lack of recipes

Lack of recipes
When I began my search for information to write this article, I was surprised by the lack of recipes available in cockloses. Malgieri's book doean't even contain one, and most of the recipes
I did atumble across in other publications were nothing more than a basic white bread cut down to thin strips. After searching through about 20 different bread and baking books, here's what I discovered:

discovered:

Some of the most basic differences among bread sticks stem from the type of fat that is used in the recipe. Olive oil, butter and lard all impart a different and distinctive flavor and tox ture. Olive oil will contribute a deep, fruity flavor and is an excellent choice when making herb

brend sticks

Butter is rich and delicate, and helps make the perfect plain, yet sweet bread stick, the kind that lends itself to a veil thin slice of Prosciutto tae perrec, pian, yes sweet creat ascel, the sunta tends itself to a veil thin siles of Prosciutto wrapped around its exterior.

Lard, perhaps the best fat for crisp bread sticks, offers an assertive, rustic taste.

As with any good bread recipe, it is always best to use an unbleached all purposa flour or better yet, a standard bread flour. Standard all purposa bleached flour has been chemically bleached and is sold mainly because it also contains bromates which have a tendency to bake light and airy breads.

Whole grains, especially those that are naturally stong ground will produce a more robust, textured bread stick with a chawier texture. Bread flour is made from hard winter wheat with a higher protein level. Bread flour should not be used for quick breads, cakes and pastry crusts because it will make for a heavier dough.

It was once said by an old philosopher that yeast, like man, luxuriates in warmer tempora-

It was once said by an old philosopher that "yeast, like man, luxuriates in warmer temperatures."
When it comes to making bread sticks, you're only as good as the yeast. Whereas, many moons ago when I was young and naive, I thought that packets of quick active dry yeast available in tripacks in the cool dairy section was the only way to go. Any baker knows that the yeast you use is critical, and it is the yeast that is the spark that ignites the fire that fuels the ongine of fermentation. Pros suggest purchasing dry bakers yeast that is sold in 4 ounce jars, or airtight bags. It is free of preservatives and rapid rise agents. Bread sticks, like good bread, should never be rushed. Fermentation with fast rising, double powered yeast robe bread and bread sticks of good texture and flavor. Don't confuse bakers yeast with nutritional or brewers yeast. Last, but certainly not least, use the best ingredients money can buy. Garile powder will never replace fresh garlle and newly purchased caraway seeds will fare much better than those that have been sitting in your spice rack for the past 11 years.

Chef Larry Janes is a free-lance writer. He wel-that have been sitting in your spect.

Def Larry Janes is a free-lance writer. He welcomes your calls and comments. To leave a message for him, dial (313) 953-2047 on a touch-tone phone, mailbox 1886. See recipes inside.

LOOKING AHEAD

What to watch for in Taste next week: Oregon's King Estate wines here at last

TASTE BUDS

REGISTERED DIETITIAN

o many, kosher foods and kosher cook-ing mean good, pure, healthy food. The-word "kosher" is a derivation of the Hebrew word "kasher" meaning "proper" or

Hebrew word 'kasher' meaning 'proper' or 'pure.'
In recent years, kesher food has enjoyed a surge in popularity as we all — regardless of our religious or ethnic background — look for healthful, wholesome food products.

Matzo ball soup is a wonderful comfort food, bagels are no mainstresm now that bagel factories pop up almost as fast as coffee shops and it's difficult to resist some of those fabulous pastries that 'crime fresh from local Jewish bakeries.

A food is deemed kosher if it conforms to strict Jewish hiblical laws pertaining not only to the type of food that may be enten, but to the kinds of food that can be combined at one meal. But there are misconceptions associated with kesher products.

So what exactly is kosher food and what separates these food items from other non-kosher foods' Within the Jowish dietary law, kosher usually refers to food that is fit to be onten, as opposed to food that is fit to be onten, as opposed to food that is fit to be onten, as opposed to food that is fit to be noten, as opposed to food that is fit, or forbidden.

Forbidden foods include pork, horse flesh, kosher usually refers to food that is fit to be eaten, as opposed to food that is "trof," or for-bidden.

Forbidden foods include pork, horse flesh, shriup, crabs and oysters. Kosher flesh are those that have scales and fins.

Kosher dietary laws requires that the slaughtering of animals and fowl be done in a manner that prevents unnecessary stiffering. Meat must be seaked and salted to remove all blood. Milk and dainy products must not be eaten with meat. This means at some meals fews that keep keeher are lactorovip seed diriy/egyfish) vegetarians.

Some foods are labeled parews or 'parw' which means that they are neutral foods. The term describes food made without animal or dairy ingredients: According to keeher dietary laws, animal food cannot be consumed at the same meal as dairy food, but a parews food may be combined or eaten with either. In order to be parew, breads or cakes must be made with vegetable old and not with butter or other animal for transition that the conding to Franklin Claire, vice president of sales for B. Manischewitz Co., a kesher food manufacturer, in order for pagkaged goods to receive the kesher certification, they must be produced under the stringer is and of a rubbl. He adds that a rabbi must be present at the production facility, to supervise and certify that all ingredients, squipment and the manufacturing process are within the strict requirements of Jewish dielary like This involves insuring that journ ingredients are used in a clean spirrounent with strictly embryed quality controls in place.

Becanse Kosher, products must pass these strictly monitored stindards, many people believe that kosher foods are healthfur than non-kosher fare. Please remember that whether a food is kosher or not, you must still read the nutritional content label to be sure it fits into your daily dietary requirements. As with most any enting pattern, if you make good choices, you can be assured a healthfuldiet.

Here are some guidelines to follow if you choose kosher foods:

Ill Foods prepared with added fat, whether it's butter (for a dairy meal) or manyarinefolifor a meat meal should be eaten in limited amounts.

Ill Active cuts of meat such as beef ribe, fish packed in old or sour cream, whole fat dairy products, say yolks and organ meats will conclude significant amounts of seturated fat and cholesterol and should be eaten in limited amounts.

cholesterol and should be esten in limited cancunts.

Mant-based soups should have the fat skimmed off. Croom soups should be prepared with the lowest fat dairy product available. Soups made with barley, pear, lentils and vegetables such as cabbage or bects can be a fully satisfying meal if served with fresh, crusty bread.

Mandiddeals monitoring their salt intake may want to limit pickled or smoked meats or fish such as salmen or haddock, or pickled, when the such as cummbers and cabbage.

Mandiddeals monitoring their salt intake may want to limit pickled or smoked meats or fish such as salmen or haddock, or pickled, but the such as cummbers and cabbage.

Mandiddeals monitoring their salt intake may want to the or oggs such as boiling, baking, grilling or steaming, sire lower fat albernatures to frying or preparation in a cream sance.

grilling or steaming, are layer fat alternatives to frying or preparation in a cream saute.

8 Enjoy desserts and pastries in limited amounts and look for those made with the lowest fat ingredients such as meringules, fruit tarts, skim milk puddings, plair cakes and baked fruits.

8 Baked products such as bread, rolls and bagels fresh from one of the many local kasher bakeries are wonderful. However, they can be high in cabries so enjoy them in limited amounts.

18 Eggs are a basic ingredient in mtsy kesher food products, An egg is an ertellent source of high-quality protein, but also contains more than 200 milligrams of choicesteol and up to 7, grams of fat. Watch for eggs in the ingredients list, and adjust your diet accordingly.

So ge ahead and enjoy the wonderful variety of wholesome kesher foods, but just remember to use good judgment.

Pages Martitelli Exerts of Clarkston is a registered distilion and director of clinical operations for HDS Services, a Kernington Hills-based food service and happitality mongement of the page of the service of the services and segment of the page of the services and happitality mongement of the page of the service of the services and segment of the services are serviced as a segment of the services and happitality mongement of the services and happitality mongement of the services and happitality mongement of the services are serviced to the services and happitality mongement of the services are serviced that the services are serviced to the services and happitality mongement of the services are serviced to the services and happitality mongement of the services are serviced to the services are serviced to the services and happitality mongement of the services are serviced to the services are serviced to the services and happitality mongement of the services are serviced to the services are serviced to the services and happitality mongement of the services are serviced to the services and happitality mongement of the services are serviced to the services are serviced to th

Learn more about kosher foods at fair

If you're interested in learning what keeher food is all about, and you enjoy trying new foods, visit The Neighborhood Project and Jowish Community Center's fifth Keeher Food Fair 1-4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 20, at the devish Community Center's dimmy Frentis Morris Building, 16110 W. 10 Mile Itond, Oak Fark. Admission is one keeher food item or a cark donation to Yad Ezra Keeher Food Pantry, an organization that feeds the hungry. For more information, call (810) 987-1112.

Fair coordinator Marion Freedman said the fair offers something for everyone whether you're Jewish or not.

Kosher cooking demonstrations by chef and cooking instructor, Annabel Cohen and Matt. Prentice of Unique Restaurant Corp., and a display of holiday and Sabbath table settings provided glimpses into Jewish traditions and food proparation. The fair also features storytelling and activities for children, and healthful eating tips provided by the Barbara Ann Karmanos Cancer Institute and Weight Watchers.

A soup contest will be the highlight of the "souper' fair, All soup cook-off entries must be made with keeher ingredients, and recipes must he made with keeher ingredients, and recipes must abente to kosher dietary laws. Judging will take place at 2 p.m. There's no charge to enter the contest, and first, second and third place prizes made with gooder ingreditions, and recipies missing adhere to kosher dictary laws. Judging will take place at 2 p.m. There's no charge to enter the contest, and first, second and third place prizes will be awarded. For contest information, call to Neighborhood Project Office (810) 997-1112. According to Froedman, the biggest draw of the Kosher Food Fair is the food sampling area. She expects 2,000 to 3,000 people will sample the kosher cuisine form 23 different booths. There will be kosher candy, nuts. pixra, stir-fry chicken, herring, kugela, brownies, rolls, and a hoat of other specialties.

The fair is sponsored by The Neighborhood Project, the deutsh Community Center, Franklin Bank, and B. Manischewitz Co.

There's a trick to making pumpkin bread a treat

Syrcial ways makes me think of all the different amella of fall. There are delicious edors of wet leaves after a rain, smoke from a fireplace, straw from a hayride and a home, filled with the scent of cinnamon and spices coming from the oven. This months recipe is for a low fat pumpkin bread. It is a terrific recipe to make a large batch of and freeze for future gift giving. Or, you can package all the dry ingredients together, put a nice holiday bow on it, attach the recipe, and present it as a gift. Either way, family and friends will love this unique present. The major changes I made involve the one cup of oil and four eggs. One cup of cooking oil has 1,928 calories and 218 grams of fat. Because this is a vegetable oil it contains no choesterol. If it had come from animal fat, such as lard, it would have been packed with cholesterol. The benefit of using a vegetable oil over an animal oil is that it contains no cholesterol. But, it still has the same amount of fat and calories!

I replaced the eight cunces of oil with 6 ounces of non-fat vanilla yogurt. The amount of yogurt is decreased elightly because it contains water and the oil dozont. If I had used an equal amount of yogurt the recipe would have contained too much liquid and would not have risen correctly. By simply replacing See BREAD, 215

See BREAD, 215

- 3 1/3 cups flour 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
- 2 teaspoons baking soda

2/3 cup water Prohest oven to 350 degrees F. Sift flour, baking powder, baking sods and sugar together. Blend in remaining ingredients. Mix well. Divide between two leaf pans. Bake for 1 hour or until knife inserted in center comes out clean. Makes 20 servings (10 per leaf)

PUMPKIN BREAD (ORIGINAL VERSION) PUMPKIN BREAD (LOW FAT VERSION)

- 3 1/3 cups flour 1/2 teaspoon baking pow 2 teaspoons baking soda
- 2 2/3 cups augor
- 6 gunces non-fet vanille yodurt

- 8 egg whites 2 cups canned pumpkin 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon 1/2 teaspoon ground cloves 1/3 cup water

Probest oven to 350 degrees F. Sift flour, baking powder, baking sode and sugar together. Blend in remaining ingredients. Mix well. Divide equally between two non-stick loaf pans. Bake for one hour or until knife inserted in conter comes out clean. Makes 20 serv ings (10 per loaf)

Ings (10 per ions)
Nutrition information: Calories 202.3
kcal, Fat 0.3 grams, Protein 4.3
grams, Cholesterol 0 mg, Carbohydrates 46.3 grams, Sodium 165 mg.
Percent Calories from fat – 1.3%