Cadets get called into police ranks

The Farmington Hills Police Department named its two newest officers Monday.

Former police Cadets Mark Rash and Andy Plemmons were promoted at an afternoon ceremony at the Farmington Hills City Council chambers while other officers and family members looked on and applauded.

The two were sworn in Tuesday by City Clerk Kathy Dornan.

Rash is a 1986 Taylor High School graduate, he has an associate degree from Henry Ford Community College and one from Schoolcraft College. He is a November 1995 graduate of the Wayne County Regional Police Academy.

Rash was hired as a cadet on

Feb. 12 and had worked with the Taylor School District before joining the police.

Rash is married with a daughter, 3, and a son, eight months. He had also been a part-time officer in Keego Harbor.

His hobbies include weight lifting, biking, camping, scuba diving, rafting, skiing and horseback riding.

Plemmons is a 1991 graduate of Catholic Central High and has an associate degree in criminal justice from Schoolcraft.

He was hired Feb. 13 as a cadet and is a recent graduate of the Wayne County Regional Police Academy.

Plemmons is a U.S. Army veteran who enjoys sky diving, rappelling, hunting and fishing.

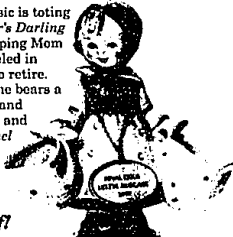

Chief welcome: Andy Plemmons shakes hands with Police Chief Bill Dwyer.
