Farmington Observer

Just pennies: The average Farmington area cable television customer will only get 67 cents back, after Time-Warner is ordered by the FCC to make a refund./A3

Signing on: Detroit Red Wing Martin Lapointe will be autographing items at Bob Saks in Farmington Hills to benefit closedhead injury victims./A6

COUNTY

Saying yesi: Bernice Gershenon has spent a lifetime of saying yes to the Detroit area through philanthropic activities. Now someone is saying yes to her./A7

MALLS & MAINSTREETS

Golden girl: Hudson saleswoman celebrates 50 years with the retailer./B6

SPORTS

A real all-star: C.J. Ghannam of Farmington Harrison, above, played at Tiger Stadium for a coaches association's annual summer classic Thursday./D1

Arts & Leisure	. €
Antomotive
Bus. & Finance	E1-6
Calendar	B3
Classifieds	G-J
Autos for sale	J7 ·
Index	116
Crossword	G4
Real Estate	GI.
Rentals	G7
Camples Culde	TA

Jobs & Careers	134
Malls & Mainstreets	B8-7
Movie Guide	_ C4
New homes	F1
Obituaries	B4
Police, fire calls	Ad
Road Watch	A7
Sports & Rec.	D
Tarto	B1

Observer offers photo reprints

Had your picture in the paper lately? Or maybe one of your children or other family members? Here's your chance to own a copy of that special photograph. Beginning today, the Observer will be offering reprints of photos that have been published in the paper. Only photos taken by our staff photographers will be available for purchase. It's easy to order reprints by calling our Customer Service department. Here's how the new service will work:

- Call our Customer Service representatives at (248) 901-4716 to order your reprint. Hours are 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday; 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Thursday; and 8 a.m. to noon Sunday.
- Make sure you know the page number where the phote ran and the date the phote appeared in the paper. Giving a short description of the phote will also help us locate the picture.
- Each reprint will cost $10. If you want more than one copy of the same photo, each addi-tional print will cost $5.
- Orders must be paid in advance, either by check or major credit card.
- check or major credit cord.

  Hotous will be printed on 8 1/2-by-11-inch, glessy photographic paper. The actual image size will vary.

  Photos published in color will be reprinted in color—photos published in black and white will be reprinted in black and white.
- Reprints are available up to six months after publication of the photo. El Please allow 10 working days for us to process
- M Reprinted photos are for personal use only. No reproduction of reprints is allowed without the written consent of the Observer & Eccentric

Nature's way

Ponds, lawns add balance to subdivision life in Springbrook

Family life: At top, Sandy and Marie Brotherton feed the ducks in their pond at the end of a long day in the yard. Above, a mother mallard with her original six, 10-day-old babies.

Editor's note: This is the first in an occasional series of stories about your neighbors—the people who live in the subdivisions and streets that make up the communities of Farmington and Farmington Hills.

BY LARRY O'CONNOR STAPP WRITER

Springbrook fits the bill of being the quintessential subdivision in more ways than one:

There are sprawling lawns, basketball hoops attached to garages, people walking dogs and riding bikes down winding treelined streets.

hoops attached to garages, people walking dogs and riding bikes down winding trelined streets.

Yoa, there are ducks too.
So many, in fact, streets in the Farmingson Hills as be outd be castly renamed from Westmoreland, O'Neill and Brookview to Huey, Louis and Dewey.

"Any time it rains, there's a lot of ducks ... a lot of ducka" said Pat Cherry, recalling how his neighbor had to chase the webbedfoot waddlers out of his garage recently.

No one is crying fowl, though Springbrook, apily named for its brooks and ponds, is a natural habitat for ducka and gese. One couple more than rolls cut the welcome mat for thoir feathered friends.

Sandy and Marie Brotherton have two manmade ponds where ducks, in particular, love to congregate. As the alternoon gives way to dusk, their tall-less cat edges curiously closer to the water only to be dispatched by a series of staccate quacks from a mother duck with her clutch wading nearby.

"You tell them momma," shouted Marie to the mother duck, relating to the maternal instincts of raising four children of her own.

Their two cats are kept in line. Neither feline — including one who is 16 years old — has brought back so much as a feather in its paws.

The couple spends a great deal of time maintaining the ponds and surrounding lawin as well as feeding the ducks with ample supplies of day-old Hillbilly Bread bought at discount rate.

The year la great deal of time maintaining the ponds and surrounding lawins as well as feeding the ducks with ample supplies
of day-old Hillbilly Bread bought at discount
rate.

The year la great deal of time maintaining the ponds and surrounding lawins as well as feeding the ducks with ample supplies
of day-old Hillbilly Bread bought at discount
rate.

The couple spends a great deal of time maintaining the ponds and surrounding lawins as when they met have a surface of the resident of Springbroo.
Subdivision find move whacker.

He laughs al
briedling mower.

rate.
They can also step back and enjoy the moment. "This is God's country," said Marie, who has a enjoy cut-ting their own spa- 3 cious front statue of St. Francis of Assisi — patron saint of animals — standing near the pond.

The yard is a labor of love, which is an outgrowth of one they share. Both were widowed when they met after Mass at Our Lady of Sorrows Church. He was proviously married 43 years; She for 39 years.

They're going on five years of marriage, part deux.

"We said we had so much function for Springbrook into function for Springbrook subdivision subdivision for Springbrook subdivision for Springbrook function for Springbrook subdivision function function for Springbrook function functi

Sandy Brotherton —resident of Springbrook Subdivision

rions nower, a annument cutter and wanker.

He laughs about returning to his old neighborhood in Bel-Aire subdivision where lots are typically 60 by 110-feet and seeing professional landscapers handling those chores.

"My attitude is if you can't work at it, you

See SPRINGEROOK, A4

Road work detours plenty of business

BY TODD WICES

Some Farmington-area businesses could be in

Some Farmington-area businesses could be in for a long summer.

Under way since April, Oakland County's widening of Eight Mile Road to five lanes between Farmington and Halsted roads has severely slowed the flow of customers into many nearby stores. With the August completion date months off, many shop owners are wondering how their businesses will survive.

"Our customer volume is about one-third of what it used to be," said Bob Waling, manager of the A.E. Amoco Station at the intersection of Eight Mile and Farmington Road. On Thursday afternoon, construction had rendered only one of the station's four entrances accessible to customers.

tomers.
"Basically, we're a 24-hour station," said Waling, "My profits have dropped, but expenses are the same. I hope I can maintain enough busithe same. I hope I can maintain enough business to stay open."

For Steinkopf Nursery, located on FarmingFor Steinkopf Nursery, located on FarmingFor Steinkopf Nursery, located on FarmingFor Road near the same intersection, the construction is taking away from prime gardening season, April through July.

"Our opening is three months," said Beth Liskiewicz, a gurdener at the nursery. "It's still safe to plant all summer long, but people are thinking spring now."
Steinkopf employees have heard a disheartening rumor that Farmington Road will be fair

Lucky baby unhurt by 2-story fall

A 13-month-old infant was uninjured and doing well Friday after falling from a two-story apartment window in Farmington Hills Thursday night.

The child was with a grandmether in a bedroom when the little girl pushed out a window screen and fell to the ground at Fairmont Park Apartments.

Apartments.
The father rushed outside to get the child, who was crying and still moving. The girl showed no visible signs of injury, but was taken to William Beaumont Hospital, treated and Farmington Hills fire and police were called to the scene.

"I was in the living room and this happened in the bedroom. My wife screamed, "The baby fell," said Jamshed Syed, the child's father. I just ran out and picked her up. She was crying.

"We are very lucky."

The grandmother had hold of the child near the window, which was open but had a screen attached, police reports said. When the infant suddenly pushed against the screen, the frame gave way causing the grandmother to less her grip on the child.

A maintenance person replaced hooks on the

A maintenance person replaced hooks on the window screens Friday morning. Syed said. Plastic tabs were used to hold the screen in place, police reports said.

The couple recently moved to the apartment complex and was unaware of the condition of the screens.

"The screen, it was not fixed properly," Syed said. "The hooks that held the screen were loss."

Said Farmington Hills police Sgt. Tim Con-nor: "I would certainly say the child was very fortunate."

Take a bow

Former Farmington city Councilman Dick Tupper received a hearty pat on the back from the Farmington Board of Education at its June 17 meeting. The board recognized the long-serving city official for being the reclipient of the "Governor's Community Service Award" for exemplary community service by a sonior.
Tupper is a volunteer for Farmington Coofellows, Farmington Neighborhood House's Phyllis Howard congratulated Tupper on his honor.
Tupper had beard members loughing as ho recoiled how he managa to graduate from Farmington High "before you raised your standards" and cited a quote by a former Farmington schools teacher Lloyd Smith in thanking district

FARMINGTON FOCUS

officials for their recognition.

"Like the proverbial turtle sitting on the fence post, you know darn well somebody had to help you get there," and Tupper, who was joined by his wife of 40 years, Donno.

The Tuppers didn't have to turtle and crawl out of sitting through the entire needing, either Trustee R. Jack Inch.— acknowledging the numerous meetings Dick and Donna have suffered through—told them they were allowed to leave, presumably with their heads held high.

Cop chopper ride

Airplane parts fell sky over Farmington Hills recently, but when a helicopter dropped down in the Oakland Community College, Orchard Ridge compus parking lot Saturday, it was expected. Marion Ringe, grants and publications director for the Datroit Medical Center and a Farmington resident, was the high bidder for the chopper ride in a recent benefit auction. She get an hour long ride in the official Warren police helicopter May 14. Ringo has had chopper rides before over the Wisconsin Dells and Mount Rushmor. "It's a completely different sensation in flying," she said.

Auction preceeds were to benefit cardiothoracie surgery research at Harper HegylialWSU School of Medicine, the Emergency Medicine Research Program at WSU, and the Racing for Rids program.