Life Has To Take Special Voyage
Several years ago when my grandmother died, the pastor told a story at her funeral. He mentioned that my grandmother was born in Italy, and that she came to America as a young lady. Then he speculated how her family probably reacted when she left Italy. As my grandmother got on a large ocean ship, and took to sea, her family was standing on shore watching as the large ship appeared smaller as it got further away. Finally the ship was out of sight and members of the family may have said, "Well, she's gone." The pastor mentioned that she wasn't gone; just they couldn't see her. Dying is like taking a voyage, and when we lose a loved one they may be away from us, but they are not gone; they are in a different place. We all have to take this voyage someday, and knowing that we will be rejoicing around the throne of God should inspire us to prepare and draw closer to our Lord.
