Oakland University students honor King

Students and staff at Oakland University in Rochester Hills commemorated Martin Luther King, Jr. Day last Monday with a march, candlelight vigil, speakers presentation and luncheon. More than 400 individuals participated in the event, which began at noon with a 20-minute march from Vandenberg Hall to the Oakland Center.

Following the march, several speakers, including the Rev. Virgil Jones, former campus minister for Wayne State University, Felicia Bumpus, coordinator of intercultural programs at Oakland University and Barry Grant, president of the school's Association of Black Students, addressed the crowd.
