Dentistry
in the 90s

by Herbert M. Gardner, D.D.S. &
Martha P. Zinderman, R.N., D.D.S.

While it is true that the risk of dental decay may decrease during young adulthood as consumption of sweets declines and oral hygiene improves, the risk of getting cavities starts off high during middle age. Why? The gums begin to recede to expose vulnerable tooth roots, which do not have the benefit of an enamel coating to protect them. Unlike the exposed crowns, tooth roots also have minimal prior exposure to topical fluoride. What is more, many older people have reduced secretions of saliva, which allows natural protection against tooth decay. To protect your teeth against "senile decay," older patients are urged to ask their dentists about possible fluoride applications, as well as strategies to improve saliva flow. The column on senile decay is brought to you by LIVONIA VILLAGE DENTAL ASSOCIATES. Preserving teeth is an important consideration for everyone. We're located at 19171 Merriman Road, where we stress preventive health care for the entire family. We utilize 21st century, state-of-the-art dentistry. The best way to reduce your chances of getting gum disease is to develop good oral hygiene habits. We recommend you brush twice a day and be sure to floss at least daily. We're currently accepting new patients and welcome your call at 478-2110 to schedule an appointment. Smiles are our business.

P.S. Gum disease can lead to root decay by harboring plaque, made up of decomposed food particles and living bacteria, beneath the gumline.
