Rocks loom as favorites in Observerland Relays

The Plymouth high schools have added the pole vault as a track event this year, but Salem hardly needs extra points to be favored in the 28th Annual Observerland Relays Saturday at Livonia Churchill.

The Rocks are the overwhelming favorites, with or without the pole vault, which is finally an event at Salem and Canton. Salem, the 1995 Observerland champion and a runner-up in 1996, appears to have most of the parts, led by versatile senior Ian Searcy. The Rocks, who finished second last weekend at the West Bloomfield Invitational and won the Ann Arbor Huron and Pioneer indoor meets, are 4-0 in duals.

"I don't know if we've ever been favored by this much, but we'll take the challenge," Salem coach Geoff Baker said. "I think I've got one of the best teams, I hesitate to say, in school history, but we are real deep and even. We can't be overconfident."

To hear opposing coaches tell it, it would be hard not to be. "Salem is the team to beat," Churchill coach Rick Austin said. "They have it all, speed, distance and field, to put it together. They could be beating people by 40 to 60 points, but Baker's smart enough to run to win, get everyone involved - so their depth is a big factor."

Searcy is one of the top 400- and 800-meter runners in Observerland, anchoring Salem's 1,600 and 3,200 relays. He also can high jump, clearing a personal best of 6 feet.

Seniors Andy Briggs and Scott Kingham are solid distance runners and senior Dave Hester brings versatility as a thrower, hurdler and high jumper.

"He's definitely a different breed," Baker said.

If it's close down the stretch, Baker doesn't expect the pole vault to decide things, but he won't turn down the pole.

"We're a little behind on that," Baker said. "I was hoping to get three over 8 feet and steal a point at the Elks Relays but at Observerland there are too many good teams." Defending champion Farmington Harrison won't be at full strength, losing senior sprinter Jerrard Johnson to a pulled hamstring Saturday in the Farmington city meet. Harrison is 1-2 in dual meets but won the city meet.

"The going to hurt us a ton, but I still think our relays will be pretty good without (Johnson)," coach John Reed said. "I'd feel a lot more confident with Jerrard in there, but we have a lot of talented kids. The conference and regional meets are more important, so we'd rather have him healthy for those."

"Our goal is to be one of the top teams there, but we never go in thinking we'll win it. We want to do the best we can and see what happens. Plymouth Salem has everything; they're not hurting anywhere."

Redford Catholic Central, which won in 1993 and finished fourth last year, could give Salem its toughest challenge. The Shamrocks finished second and Salem fifth at the Elks Relays, but that may be misleading since the Rocks had several of their top performers at the Mansfield Relays in Ohio the same day.

CC coach Tony Magni hopes some of his top runners aren't sluggish, attending a prom the night before. The Shamrocks will have strong distance teams, led by Joe Hubert, a good high jumper in David Popiel and strong discus and shot put teams.

CC finished second Friday at the Jackson Invitational, but is a 72-55 loss Monday to Dearborn Divine Child a sign the Shamrocks aren't as deep as usual? It's the first time DC has ever beaten one of Magni's teams.

"We'll always put out a pretty good team, but Salem is so far ahead of everybody else," Magni said. "In track you need sprinters and middle distance kids, and they have them. Our goal is to always get a trophy (finish among the top three)."

Westland John Glenn, second last year and champion in 1996, hopes sprinter Harden James is back at full strength from a leg injury. His return is important to Glenn's 400 and 800 relays that include Rob Fanti, Reggie Spearman and Devin White.

The Rockets lost their first Lakes Division dual meet since 1996 on Thursday to Livonia Stevenson, 81-55.

"It depends on whether we get healed up," Glenn coach Jess Shough said. "I think we can be competitive."

The Rockets have one of Observerland's better long and high jumpers in Tim Moore. He, White and Will Boer give the Rockets strong teams in both relays.

Livonia Churchill is 1-2 in dual meets, but the Chargers finished third at the Belleville Relays and that "absolutely bodes well," Austin said. "Almost everyone PR'd and our performances were real quality."

Austin thinks the school record in the 110-meter hurdles is in jeopardy the way Ryan Kearney is running. He also has cleared 6-3 in the high jump.

The Chargers are strong in the distance events, led by Jason Richmond, and more than adequate in the shot put and discus
