Patriotic banners, video net kudos for Lanigan pupils

The subject of patriotism unleashed some winning creativity among Lanigan Elementary School pupils.

Students at the Farmington district school captured four national awards in the recent Junior American Citizens contests, sponsored by the Daughters of the American Revolution. The theme for this year's JAC contests was "A Patriot's Plan for the Future."

Lanigan students winning national awards were as follows:

■ Brittany Cheyne, first place in the third grade individual banner contest.

■ Meghan Dreher won third place in the third grade video contest.

■ Erica Johnson won honorable mention in the third grade poster contest.

■ Jan Irvin's kindergarten class won third place in the group banner contest.

Lanigan Principal Marva Turner was to have presented all chapter, state, division and national awards at the student assembly the last day of school.

Winners at all levels receive certificates of award. State and national winners also receive ribbons and cash prizes.

The national winning entries will be displayed at the Daughters of the American Revolution building in Washington, D.C. during the DAR national convention.

The JAC clubs and contests are open to all school aged children as a way to promote patriotism, an interest in American history and good citizenship among today's youth. There are contest categories for artwork, creative writing, and special projects.

Each grade level is judged separately.
