Helping the Ronald McDonald House

school to design and make the quilts - which feature geometric shapes and class photos woven right into the fabric.

The students began the community service effort several months ago, thinking of it as nothing more than that. But, by the time they were done, Reams said, they really put their hearts into it.

They wanted to give them to someone who could keep them warm, said Reams, adding that Highmendow parents helpod with the project along with the school's art, music and physical education teachers. She said the reaction from officials at the Ronald McDonald House, a place for parents to stay while their lill children are hospitalized, has been "extremely positive. They love the quilts."
