OCC Announces Viet Vet Course

Oakland Community College has announced a work-study program for armed forces veterans who served during the Vietnam war.

Veterans in Public Service (VIPS) is scheduled to begin in late November and lead to two years of transferable credits in college or pre-college training.

VIPS is planned in cooperation with the Detroit Public Schools, who will employ 27 veterans.

The long-range objective of the program, funded by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), is that these veterans will continue their education, hopefully choosing to become certified teachers in inner-city schools.

Tuition costs are to be assumed by the veteran through his regular G.I. Bill benefits.

"The public schools offer an excellent opportunity for a veteran to share with students the benefits of his experience," Detroit School Superintendent Norman Drachler said.

"In addition, this program
