First lady: Annie Wardle played the role of Eleanor Roosevelt as part of the history exercise at Flanders Elementary School.

Flanders students bring history to life

Important figures from American history came to life thanks to the efforts of Flanders Elementary School pupils.

Those fifth graders recently presented a "Living History" museum in the gymnasium of the Farmington district school. Many parents attended the event, said Flanders media center specialist Anne Marie Kurzyniec.

Among some of the characters were Brandon Glossop's "Orville Wright," class president Annie Wardle's "Eleanor Roosevelt," Chad Atkins' "General Robert E. Lee" and Dustyn Truitt's "General Chamberlain."

Kurzyniec said the youngsters selected their historical characters, researched them and then, of course, dressed up to take on those roles.

The classes of teachers Pam Green and Karen Calvert participated in the program.

Generals: Waiting for visitors to stop by their station are students Chad Atkins (left) and Dustyn Truitt, portraying Civil War generals Lee and Chamberlain, respectively.
