Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Jenks are now located in their pleasant new home on Grand River avenue and are busy getting settled.

SURPRISE FOR HOTEL GUEST

Found Money Scattered About His Room, but Chambermaid Proved It Was Hers.

When the occupant of a room in a hotel telephones downstairs for the manager at midnight it is a sure sign in the office that the kick that is coming is going to be life sized. So when the room clerk at the Gotham, who happened to be the highest authority at that hour, started upstairs to receive what was coming he was prepared for the worst.

Instead, the man who had telephoned, greeted him with a smile. "Say," he remarked, "I expected to get my bill today, but hardly expected to find a lot of money on my floor. Look at it."

The floor was covered with silver and small bills. The clerk counted the money and found there was $97 of it. The only clew he had as to the owner was a little bag. Next morning bright and early one of the chambermaids reported she had lost her roll, which she had been in the habit of carrying in a little bag in her stocking, and as she named the sum correctly she recovered the money that had been found the night before.—New York Sun.

MAJOR LYDE COKER'S RISE

Ruined by Civil War, He Has Fought His Way to Affluence and Fame.

Major Lyde Coker, the father of scientific farming in South Carolina, is a native of that state, and was left penniless after the Civil war. Prior to the war he had studied chemistry at Harvard, and in 1865 plowed his ground with a sore-backed army mule and a yoke of borrowed oxen. He hoed in the fields with his faithful negro hands and sold his cotton at good prices. His success led to further experiments; he prospered and built a railroad to pave the way for larger industries. He is a banker, factory owner, cotton grower and philanthropist; founder of Coker college, a woman's school, which he has liberally endowed. At Hartsville, his home town of some 2,600 inhabitants, he has in operation one of the finest department stores in South Carolina. Every morning he drives to his office and performs a full day's work, despite his seventy-five years. Ever since the war he has been compelled to use crutches, owing to a wound received in battle.

HAD ONE GREAT AMBITION

Oliver Herford, the Humorist, Rebuked by Poetess for Causing People to Laugh.

Acton Davies, the dramatic critic, tells a story of Oliver Herford, the humorist. Herford never had a serious thought in his life. As a baby, feeling the prick of a pin which fastened his little bundle together, he used to laugh instead of cry about it. "Herford sat next to a soulful poetess at dinner one night," Davies relates, "and that dreamy one turned her sad eyes upon him. 'Have you no other ambition,' Mr. Herford, she demanded, 'than to force people to degrade themselves by laughter?' 'Yes, Herford had an ambition. A whale of an ambition. Some day he hoped to gratify it. The woman rested her elbows on the table and propped her face in her long, sad hands, and gazed into Mr. Herford's eyes. 'Oh, Mr. Herford,' she said, 'Oliver! Tell me about it.' 'I want to throw an egg into an electric fan,' said Herford, simply."

CARE OF GARNATIONS.

The perpetual flowering carnations which are rooted must be potted up into small pots in light, sandy soil. For a few days after potting they must be kept close till they have recovered from the shift; then gradually insure them to more airy conditions, but do not expose them to cold drafts. When they have attained a height of six or seven inches pinch out the points of the plants to form a bushy habit. Pot them on into five-inch pots before the roots become pot bound. They must eventually be placed into seven-inch pots, in which size they will flower. The shoots will again require to be "stopped" when they have obtained a suitable length; unless the plants are very late, when one stopping will suffice.—Garden.

TO HELP IMMIGRANTS.

Bishop Matz of the Denver diocese, has been conducting an experimental colony for the exclusive benefit of Catholics at Stratton, Colo., for the last two years. The work is successful. It is now announced that Catholics will conduct a nationwide colonization movement with Archbishops Ireland of St. Paul; Messmer of Milwaukee and Glennon of St. Louis at the head of it. The aim is to attract people from the hard struggle in the cities and to divert immigrants who would otherwise be swept into that channel.

FORCE OF HABIT.

Photographer—Say! Pardon me! But that's the third time you've covered your face with a handkerchief just as I was ready.

Subject—I know, but I can't help it. I've been indicted a good deal lately, and I've got the habit trying to dodge newspaper photographers.—Puck.

ANSWERED.

"Is your husband home?"
"Yes; what do you want with him?"

"I'm—er—revising the voting list, and I just wanted to inquire which party he belongs to."

"Do yer? Well, I'm the party wot 'e belongs to."—London Tatler.

HOW WOMEN TAKE CRITICISM

Former Editor of London Times, in Answer to Protest Against Review, Tells Sex's Weakness.

In "The Life of John Oliver Hobbes," edited by her father, John Morgan Richards, there is a slashing arraignment of the literary woman in her attitude toward those who criticize her work. It is from the pen of Moberly Bell, the famous editor of the London Times. Moberly Bell and Mrs. Craigie were personal friends, and the latter wrote protesting against the treatment that "The Flute of Pan" had received at the hands of the Times reviewers. In response the editor wrote in part: "There is one thing and only one thing that the Omnipotent has absolutely failed to create. 'My little boy wet the bed every night clear-thro' on the floor. I tried several kinds of kidney medicine and I was in the drug store looking for something different to help him when I heard of 'Foley Kidney Pills.' After he had taken them two days we could see a change and when he had taken two-thirds of a bottle he was cured. That is about six weeks ago and he has not wet the bed since." Sold by T. H. McGee.

THE SHOCK

Policeman—What killed the poet? Coroner—The Nichol Out Magazine accepted one of his poems.

DISPENSE WITH MOURNING.

"A southern physician of recognized skill and eminence urges that all outward symbols of mourning should be abandoned," says Munsey's. "For many years he has expressed his views. He has won over a large number of people who see no reason why the heart should advertise its sorrow by the conspicuous insignia of gloom.

"There are, or have been, peoples wiser in their generation. The Romans of the days of the republic wore blue as a sign of mourning. It is the proper thing in Asia Minor now. The Turk mourns in violet and the Persian in pale brown. Until a French queen set the present fashion in the latter half of the fifteenth century white was the color of grief in Europe, as it is now in China.

BELGIAN HORSES IN DEMAND.

Horse breeding in Belgium, especially in heavy draft horses, increased considerably. The business continues profitable, the best stock commanding high prices. There were 24,699 horses exported from Belgium in 1910, an increase of 6,242 head over the previous year. The exportation of Belgian horses for breeding purposes to the United States increased in value from $158,879 in 1909 to $207,943 in 1910.

NEW STEAL.

"Fine climate you have here, so bracing," remarked the casual visitor.

"Yes, pretty good," allowed the village pessimist, "but them confounded automobiles come along and pump the air into their pneumatic tires."—Lippincott's.

CLASH OF OPPOSING FORCES.

"I see where Dr. Wiley is to begin some hard work."

"In what way?"

"By ending some soft drinks."

CAUTION.

"So, Miss Oldgirl was married at last. Who gave the bride away?"

"Nobody. She wasn't taking any chances."

The Danger of La Grippe.

Is its fatal tendency to pneumonia. To cure your la grippe coughs take Foley's Honey and Tar Compound.

R. E. Fisher, Washington, Kan., says: "I was troubled with a severe attack of la grippe that threatened pneumonia. A friend advised Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and I got relief after taking the first few doses. I took three bottles and my la grippe was cured. Get the genuine in the yellow package. Sold by T. H. McGee.

Chas. Durham, Lovington, Ill., has succeeded in finding a positive cure for bed wetting. "My little boy wet the bed every night clear-thro' on the floor. I tried several kinds of kidney medicine and I was in the drug store looking for something different to help him when I heard of 'Foley Kidney Pills.' After he had taken them two days we could see a change and when he had taken two-thirds of a bottle he was cured. That is about six weeks ago and he has not wet the bed since." Sold by T. H. McGee.
